Many Deer—No Wolves
A Little Politics
Can't Worry Wall Street
Rich, Getting Richer

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

FARMERS in Pennsylvania complain of wild deer eating their crops. Twenty years ago there were only a thousand deer in the state, now there are a million.

There are no wolves in Pennsylvania. Deer help, and warn each other. Wolves don't help each other. Read Kropotkin's "Mutual Aid, a Factor in Evolution."

Governor Smith, who understands politics, and Mr. Raskob, of finance and organization, talked in New York for an hour yesterday about campaign policies.

Herbert Hoover is on his way east to the capital, perfectly satisfied, his friends say, with conditions in the farm belt. Republicans believe that what they call "Governor Smith's indefiniteness" on the farm question will keep farmers in the Republican ranks.

Newspapers of Texas comment bitterly on Governor Smith's prohibition statement. The suggestion that state governments should "go into the liquor business" seems particularly offensive.

August Heckscher, of New York, on the other hand, public-spirited citizen, lifelong Republican, with many millions of dollars, will vote for Smith. He likes his prohibition ideas.

Wall Street gentlemen, neither toiling nor spinning, but watching the ticker intently, are free from worry in this campaign.

They sent stocks booming again yesterday, bought and sold 3,000,000 in the first four hours, nearly 4,000,000 shares all together.

It was a sad day for Tunney. But then almost any day is sad for those foolish enough to go short of this country.

Those who realize that the dollar is now worth 60 cents compared with 1914, while our properties are worth a great deal more than they were then in real dollars, know that the prosperity boom is just starting.

Selling stocks isn't the only cheerful business. Industrial production and consumption are establishing new high records in many industries, according to the Department of Commerce. The first half of 1927 established a new high record. The first half of 1928 beats it.

Steel, electric, automobile and other industries are booming, retail sales expanding, and savings increasing. You can't complain of that picture.

As a nation we are richer than ever, and getting richer all the time.

In Japan, as regards religion, you may be anything you like, Shintoist, Buddhist, Confucian, Christian — of any brand — but you must not meddle with the Mikado.

Aijiro Oniani, "head of the family of living gods and goddesses," is locked up with 178 followers. Descending from the gods, they say they ought to rule the country. Wise Japan, interfering only when necessary.

Laddie Sharp, English girl, only 17, swam the channel yesterday in 15 hours, 5 minutes.

A wonderful achievement, although she didn't win $5,000 offered to any woman breaking Gertrude Ederle's record, 14 hours, 31 minutes.

Being double-jointed, Miss Laddie can use the "double scissors kick stroke" and does 55 strokes per minute.

Such wonderful energy should be devoted to something more important than swimming the channel.

The airplane entered high finance yesterday with news that

SEARCH FOR DEAD AND HELPLESS INJURED IN WRECKAGE

Firemen and emergency squad members of the railway system shown searching the demolished cars for victims of the crash of New York subway train at Times sq., in which 14 were killed and 99 injured, resulting in arrest of a maintenance of way man on a charge of homicide. President Hedley of the Interborough system was threatened with arrest until the other man appeared and was taken into custody.

15 DEAD, 98 HURT IN N. Y. DISASTER

New York, Aug. 25 (AP) — The Transit Commission announced today that investigation showed that the wreck of a subway train last night, in which 15 persons were killed and 98 injured was caused not by a switch that had been reported out of order but by another under control at the nearest signal tower, and at some switch valves near the track.

Meantime many of those injured in the crash are believed to be dying.

"It is the opinion of the commission's signal and switch experts," a formal statement said, "that the accident was the result of man failure."

It had previously been believed that the wreck was caused by a switch which the tower man had reported was defective to the maintenance man. William Baldwin, and which Baldwin had repaired. Baldwin is under $10,000 bail on a charge of homicide.

The commission's statement said that the switch which caused the derailment was apparently turned as the train was passing over it.

BATTLE 2-ALARM FIRE IN HIGH ST. PL. BLOCK

While hundreds of persons bound for work looked on, firemen today battled a two-alarm fire in a four-story brick building at High st. pl. and Matthews st.

Downtown traffic was seriously congested as fire apparatus and crowds filled High st. Smoke rising from the blazing structure rolled over the section and attracted scores to the roofs of office buildings.

Starting on the third floor of the building which was occupied by a concern which bales rags and cotton waste, the flames ate rapidly upward and downward and also penetrated into the building at 72, 74 High st. There was some fire

MONK MAY ALLOW OLD AUTO RATES TO STAND

A possibility that the auto insurance rate boost may be reduced substantially and may not be promulgated at all by Insurance Commissioner Wesley E. Monk was seen today in guarded statements by the commissioner.

Some State officials freely expressed the opinion he would let the rates stand as they now are, putting it up to the insurance companies to go to court seeking higher schedules, if they feel they are wronged.

Following a conference with Lieut.-Gov. Frank G. Allen, Monk admitted, under a barrage of questions, that the Lieutenant-Governor had made such a suggestion to him.

The insurance commissioner that added that anouncement of next year's rates, which was to have been made next Monday, would not be made until several days later.

Because of long association in the State Senate, Commissioner Monk and Lieut.-Gov. Allen are close friends. Allen, having cemented friendships with most of his associates while acting as presiding officer of that body.

"I listened to the lieutenant-governor with a receptive mind," said Monk. He gave the impression that

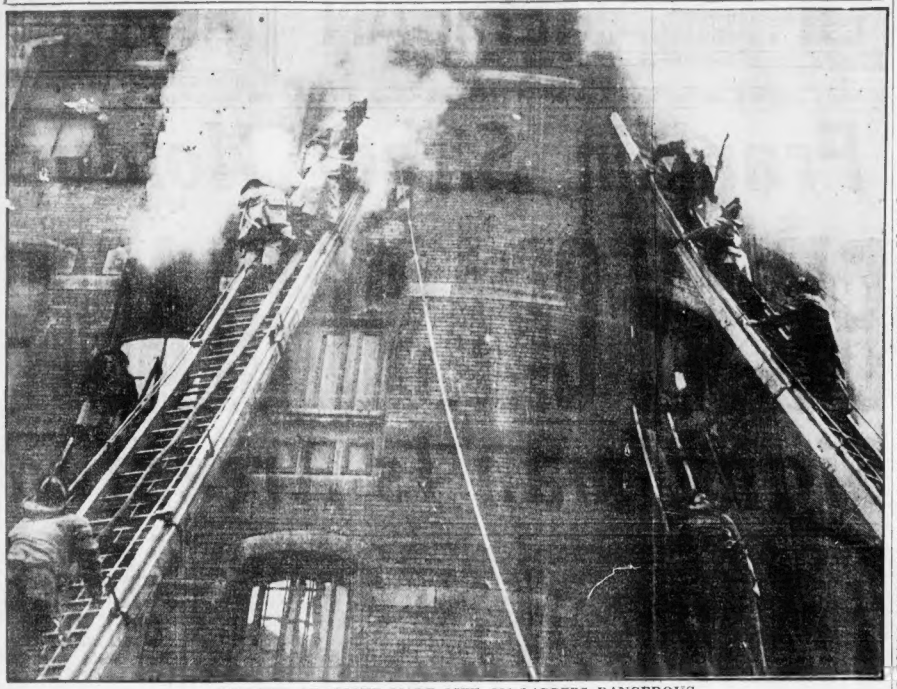
SWITCH THAT CAUSED N. Y. TUBE HORROR KNOWN TO BE FAULTY

Firemen Battle ~ Downtown Blaze ~ High Up in Air



BILLOWS OF SMOKE MADE LIFE ON LADDERS DANGEROUS

Fire in the third story of block on High street place spread up and down so rapidly that it gave the firefighters a hard battle, and smoke was so dense they had to use gas masks to get near enough to fight the flames. Picture shows how they attacked blaze from ladders at strategic points.

ONLY ONE ARREST MADE

"There is nothing to show that the switch was turned by the train itself," the statement said. "It might have been turned by a movement of the lever in the tower or by someone moving the switch valves near the track."

Baldwin was in charge of repairs of the switch that at first was thought to have ended the train.

He was arraigned before Magistrate Pool in women's court and was held for hearing in homicide court. He is 42 years old and has two children.

SEEKS LIGHTER BAIL

At the arraignment Asst. Dist. Atty. McGowan was prosecutor. An I. R. T. attorney represented Baldwin and objected to such high bail, asserting that if any crime had been committed it was second degree manslaughter.

"I think $10,000 is reasonable," the magistrate ruled and the transit attorney said it would be furnished by a surety company.

In his plea for lower bail the lawyer said Baldwin had been an I. R. T. employe for 14 years, a repairman for all but one of that time, and had had 30 years' experience as a signal expert.

Detective Gregory testified that Harry King, towerman at Times sq., notified Baldwin of the defective switch about 4.50 o'clock and that Baldwin, with a helper, went to the switch and supposedly repaired it.

Baldwin, Gregory said he had found out, successfully let an empty ten-car train pass over the switch and then signaled the motorman of the train which was later wrecked to go ahead.

Four investigations were under way today with Mayor Walker in charge of the city inquiry. Many of those injured in the crash are in critical conditions and it is feared some will die.

The French Hospital reported today that last night six major operations were performed on wreck victims.

Among thousands of relatives and friends who besieged the city's hospitals for word of the injured was Wilbur Brisbane, newspaper editor, who sat all night at the bedside of his lifelong friend, Thomas Ford Reid. Ford's legs were fractured.

At the French Hospital this morning it was said that the condition of Lazar Chasin, brother of the heads of the Chasin Construction Co., was serious.

In several instances ambulance surgeons resorted to blood transfusion operations to save the lives of injured.

APPEAL FOR BLOOD

In the case of Mrs. Bertha Branson, who was suffering from internal hemorrhages, police and doctors appealed to the crowds packed along the police lines for blood to save the woman's life, but they said no one responded.

An appeal was then made at the John F. Marriam Club, a politico-organization nearby, and a dozen offered themselves. Five were selected after preliminary blood tests, but were finally not called upon when professional blood donors were available.

Thomas Ford, with whom Mr. Brisbane sat up all night, lives in Weston Springs, Ill. He was to have sailed with his wife for Europe on the liner Minnetonka today. He has more than $3000 in cash in his pockets when he was taken to the hospital.

Two hours before the Minnetonka sailed this morning the Fords' reservations were cancelled and their baggage was removed from the ship.

Today's four investigations of the wreck were instituted by the district attorney, the Transit Commission, the police department, reporting to Mayor Walker, and the Interborough Rapid Transit Company.

When the disaster occurred, the subway train, a 10-car downtown express, was leaving the Times Sq. station when the ninth car plunged sideways on the switch and was derailed.

The car crashed into a concrete partition separating the north and south bound tracks, broke in two, overturned, and was telescoped by the car behind it. The eighth car was also turned over.

Before the power could be shut off short circuits had set fire to the wreckage and the terror of fire was added to other perils of the 1,800 passengers.

Eleven bodies were taken from the wrecked ninth car. Four other victims died in hospitals today.

The eighth car also turned over as it was dragged from the track by the weight of the ninth car. The tenth car crashed on into the wreckage, but remained upright.

ONE KILLED, 3 HURT IN NEW YORK CENTRAL WRECK

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 25 (AP)—Albert L. Westherwax, engineer, of Elkhart, Ind., was killed today and three train men were injured when a New York Central passenger train ran into an open switch at Parchment, a few miles north of here. The locomotive and two combination mail and express cars overturned. Several passengers were shaken but none was injured seriously.

EYE-WITNESSES TELL OF TUBE HORRORS

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—The tragic story of the Times sq. subway crash was vividly told by survivors.

Miss Alma Wassau, 22, stenographer, of Brooklyn, at Bellevue Hospital suffered from cuts and possible internal injuries. She was a passenger in one of the rear cars.

"The first indication of the tragedy," she said, "was a terrific grinding noise.

"A second later I saw the car behind ours rip right through a steel girder and our own car lurched and turned in a step. Everybody was yelling and screaming and rushed to the doors.

MARVELS AT ESCAPE

"Oh, the horror of it all. I saw women with their legs cut off lying between the tracks. One man, all blackened, was lying across the third rail. I guess he had been electrocuted.

"I don't know how I ever got out. The crowd just seemed to push me. I met people screaming, moaning and dying."

Clarence A. Smith of Brooklyn, a passenger in the seventh car, who escaped with an injured nose, said he estimated there were between two and three hundred persons jammed in the car.

Suddenly, he said, there was a crash like a bolt of lightning, the lights went out and the car was plunged in darkness.

"Then it got hot," he said. "Oh, how hot! Heavy smoke began pouring into the car like a gas attack during the war. Then a woman began to scream and then men to shout, and everybody tried to fight his way out. It was horrible.

"We spent almost an hour in there. It seemed like eternity. Through the back of the car came the groans and screams of the injured and dying. I'll relive that ghastly experience all the rest of my life."

Ted S. Kanville of Brooklyn, a passenger in one of the middle cars of the train, said the worst was the terror everyone was thrown into.

WHOLE TRAIN SHOOK

"We didn't know what had happened, couldn't see and were choked by the smoke; it was as if a couple of thousand wild animals had all been turned loose at once in a cramped, dark pen full of smoke and were fighting to get out," he said.

Lawrence Kerney, of New York, a passenger in one of the forward cars, said the train at the impact shook like a leaf.

"There was some screaming and a rush began for the windows," he said. "But on the whole, most people kept their heads. The women were cooler than the men."

John F. ... a mounted policeman on t... city was riding past the subway entrance at 40th st. when he heard the crash. He ran down the steps and with the aid of a small electric flash pulled dead, dying and injured from the cars.

"There was a tremendous jam," he said, "it seems like a miracle that more were not killed. When you realize that the sudden crash and the extinguished lights added terror and maddened those trapped in the cars, I wonder that the list of dead did not have hundreds of names."

Peter Molitor, a chauffeur of Brooklyn, added many of escape by crawling in the window nearest him with a wrench.

"It was like a madhouse when the lights went out," he said, "Everywhere I could hear shrieks. Those who were not shouting for help were sobbing. There were a number of children in our car and their cries could be heard above everything."

Wreck Occurred at World's Busiest Traffic Center

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—The Times Square Station, scene of the disastrous subway crash, is the hub of the city's underground transit system and perhaps the busiest transportation center in the world.

Trains arrive and depart almost continuously over 13 tracks on four different routes on three levels. A dozen or more entrances pour thousands of persons into the station during the rush hour, 50,000,000 persons passing through the gate of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company's alone last year.

I. R. T. ALONE RESPONSIBLE, SAYS HEDLEY

New York, Aug. 25 (INS)—Admission that the Interborough Rapid Transit Co. assumes full responsibility for deaths and injuries in the Times sq. subway wreck and that it must pay all authentic damage claims was made today by Frank H. Hedley president of the company.

Hedley said that the claims would seriously embarrass the company, but voiced the belief that they would not force it into bankruptcy, as the Malbone st. disaster in 1918 did the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company.

"There is no question," he told reporters. "That our company is responsible for this accident, which I consider the most regrettable experience we have ever had.

"There is no such thing as absolute safety in running a railroad, although we have taken every possible precaution to safeguard the public and will continue to do so.

"I admit our company is liable and we must pay, and will, to the best of our ability."

"Although I haven't thought anything about financial reactions, the threatened suits would seriously embarrass us.

"While I do not think we will face bankruptcy through expenditures in settling these suits, we do face a hard problem in meeting them."

Hedley said the company had no insurance against such liabilities. He also said that, in his belief, the city shared no responsibility in the matter with the I. R. T.

Dead in Subway Crash

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—The following were killed in the subway wreck:

Mrs. Ann Quigley, Pale News film inspector.
Mabel Whitman, address unknown.
James Burke, Merrick, N. Y.
Joseph Cone, no address.
George Frey, Rockville Center, N. Y.
Mrs. Mary Haines, Staten Island.
Vincent Menegus, 115 Rimbalt ave., Clifton, N. J.
Irving Rabinowitz.
Mrs. Alice Sutherford.
Mrs. Marion Zips and her son, Herbert, seven.
Anna Kane.
Anna Mcgroarity.
One unidentified woman.

Among the injured were:

Austrid Nylen, 31 Boardman st., Worcester, Mass.
Helga Sjostron, 24 Westminster rd., Worcester, Mass.

Pressed for details of the cause of the disaster, Hedley said:

"The interlocking machine of the switch gave trouble. The switch, for some undiscovered reason, suddenly went open. The repairman were standing a short distance from it, five feet north of the switch at the time of the accident. They were trying to locate the exact trouble.

"The switchman gave the signal to Baldwin, the maintenance man in charge, to let the train through. I believe Baldwin did what, as a railroad man, would have been expected of him."

HIT, RUN DRIVER ANGRY WHEN HELD UP

Timothy Deleroy of Hood st., Lynn, was today the victim of a hit and run driver, who, when overtaxied and asked to take his victim to a physician, told his questioner to mind his own business.

The police were given the registration number of the machine and Deputy Chief Callahan said an arrest would be made.

Deleroy was walking with Emmet Donovan of South st., Lynn, on Western ave., in that city, when he was struck down by a car, the driver of which sped away. William L. Kohler of Kilsey st., Boston, and Frank Nash of Grant st., Dorchester, overtook the fleeing driver. Kohler and Nash took Deleroy to the office of Dr. George Grady. He suffered injuries to his left leg, left side and left arm.

When police visited the home of the man, in whose name the car is registered they claim to have found a machine with a dented right front fender and twisted headlight.

SEVEN FINED $100 EACH IN WHEEL GAME

Heavy fines were meted out to seven men convicted of operating roulette wheels at a benefit being held in the Lincoln school yard, South Boston, when they appeared in the South Boston District court for the second time this week.

Judge Logan fined each man $100. They appealed.

They were arrested this week and brought before the court where their cases were placed on file. They started right after this testimony disclosed, to operate the wheels again.

The men were Max Dand, of Revere, Mimo Taiche of Salem, Robert Good of Revere, Thomas Hennessey of Boston, Hawley Jackson of Lynn, Edward Bernstein of Dorchester, George Brown of Dorchester.

Judge Logan ordered filed cases taken from the files and imposed a $50 fine on each case.

'ANTI-CATHOLIC VOTE' WARNED BY COPELAND

Chautauqua, N. Y., Aug. 25 (AP)—To vote against Governor Smith on the polls this November because he is a Catholic would be repudiation of one of the chief principles on which this country was founded, U. S. Senator Royal S. Copeland declared in an address here today.

"It would be a great pity if Governor Smith were denied the Presidency because of the accident of birth into a Catholic family," said Senator Copeland. "In a country founded on religious freedom it is unthinkable that we should vote against him on this account. This would be a real nullification of one of the most vital guarantees of liberty embodied in our constitution.

"I sit beside Catholics in the United States Senate. I vote with them or against them—but my vote will not be against me. They are not as loyal, just as patriotic, just as truly American as Mr. Coolidge, the Congressionalist, or Mr. Hoover, the Quaker.

"The accidents of birth and religion mean nothing in statesmanship and citizenship."

Senator Copeland took up the question of prohibition, farm relief and the tariff.

"Governor Smith believes there should be submitted to the people the question of some change in the provisions of the 18th Amendment," Mr. Copeland said. "In the interest of good government, the friends of prohibition should welcome such a test. If prohibition is so insecure as to be incapable of withstanding a vote of the people, there can never be hope of its enforcement."

DIVORCEE HIKER HALTED IN MALE MASQUERADE

Attired in manly clothing, Mrs. Margaret Burns, 29, convicted husband divorcee and mother of one child, set out today on a hike to New York with Frank H. O'Donnell of Plympton st., Cambridge.

They had 10 cents, high hopes and a mutual affection that was to culminate in marriage if they found work in New York.

In Central sq., Waltham, they met Sergt. William H. Lyons and Patrolman William Hoolihan.

"'Tis a queer looking man," said the sergeant, gazing after the girlish figure clothed in brown serge, white shirt and necktie, heavy shoes and a cap.

"It is that," Hoolihan agreed.

They went after the pair and verifying their suspicions as to the sex of one took both to the police station and later into Waltham Court before Judge John M. Gibbs.

"Do you know it is a serious offense for a woman to masquerade in men's clothing?" the court inquired.

"She didn't realize it was serious," said O'Donnell. "I asked her not to do it, but she did. I love the girl and intend to marry her and then we can take care of her baby who is now boarded out. She has her own clothing in a bundle."

"I suppose the charge, then," said the Judge.

The charge, accomplished under the circumstances of a police matron, Judge Gibbs dismissed them and no charge was lodged against them. Their hopes still high, they continued their hike New York-ward.

HE FALLS DEAD AFTER CRASH

Jacob Symes, 61, of Walnut pk., Roxbury, fell dead today while talking to a nurse in Milton Hospital where he had been taken for treatment of supposedly slight injuries suffered in an automobile crash.

The accident occurred in Rose Hill ave., Milton, when Symes cut out of line to pass another car, police say. He found an auto approaching from the opposite direction and discovering he could not clear the car ahead, swung back into line and struck it. When he applied the brakes his own car skidded 100 feet and overturned.

Riding with him was Miss Evelyn Leskovitz, 23, also of Walnut pk. Both were raised to the hospital and except for a few scratches neither seemed injured. Then Symes fell dead, a clot of blood having reached the heart.

HELD FOR SPANKING GIRL WHO TEASED HIM

Because he is alleged to have caught hold of a 6-year-old girl who pestered him, and administered a sound spanking, Max Cohen, South Boston pedlar, was arraigned today in South Boston court where he pleaded not guilty. Bail of $1,000 was fixed, but he was allowed to go on his personal recognizance.

ARREST "DROWNING MAN" FOR TOO SCANT ATTIRE

Receiving a report that a man was drowning off M st., police of Athens st. division, South Boston, hurried there in a patrol wagon today and found John Whity, 24, [illegible] of Fourth st., emerging from the water in the scant raiment of an Aphrodite, according to their report. Seeing the police, Whity went back in and swam half a mile to F st., where he found the same police awaiting him. He was arrested for drunkenness, his clothes being picked up at M st.

JACQUELINE TO DODGE 'BIGAMY'

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 25 (INS)—The honeymoon of Jacqueline Logan, film actress, who was married to Larry Winston, Los Angeles broker, at Agua Caliente, Mexico, recently, will come to a peculiar conclusion Monday when she resumes her picture work here.

Insomuch as her final decree of divorce from her first husband does not become final until next March, Miss Logan and her husband will part at the international boundary line. If they live together as man and wife in California before Miss Logan's decree becomes final, authorities said she would be liable to prosecution on bigamy charges.

"We intend to live apart until we can be legally married in California," Miss Logan said.

SCARLET FEVER BREAKS OUT IN BOYS' CAMP

East Brookfield, Aug. 23 (AP)—Four cases of scarlet fever were reported today among the boy Scouts at Camp Frank A. Day, conducted by Newton Y. M. C. A., at Lake Dean, it was said.

Dr. William F. Hayward says the patients have been transferred to Belmont isolation hospital in Worcester.

DENGUE KILLING 20 A DAY IN GREECE; 50,000 ILL

Athens, Aug. 25 (AP)—Deaths from the dengue epidemic gripping Greece have reached an average of 20 a day. There are more than 50,000 cases at Piraeus, where business has come to a standstill and many steamers are unable to depart due to lack of crews.

INSURANCE COMPANIES MAY HAVE TO FIGHT FOR NEW RATES

tinctly that he was looking at the matter from a different point of view and might change his personal interpretation of the insurance law.

Hitherto, in spite of argument by Governor Fuller, he has held to the opinion the law bound him to accept figures submitted by insurance companies and to base his rates on those statistics.

Who conference lasted two hours and one of the subjects emphasized by Allen was the item of $6,000,000 claims unpaid, but payable. He pointed out that this figure included fraudulent claims which, if eliminated, might greatly minimize the necessity for huge rate increases.

Governor Fuller was urged today to appoint a fact-finding commission of seven to definitely establish facts of the insurance situation and to call a special session of the Legislature to amend the insurance law. Rep. Braham R. Casson of Boston made these requests in a letter in which he declared there was an emergency requiring drastic and immediate action.

"It is disgusting to see the insurance companies entirely absolved of blame for existing conditions," wrote Casson. He would have the commission composed of three representatives, one senator and three members from the public-at-large.

George R. Nutter, president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, sent a letter to Commissioner Monk stating the officers of the association are in favor of having a special committee investigate the charges of fraudulent claims and recommend the course to be pursued.

RAPS LEGISLATURE

He also points out the efforts made by the association to raise the standard of admission to the bar in Massachusetts and of having "going to the Legislature year after year" with that end in view. He concludes by declaring, "But our efforts have always met with failure."

President Nutter's letter to the commissioner was, in part, as follows:

"Since our conference on Wednesday I have conferred with each of the officers, present and past, of the Massachusetts Bar Association and of its grievance committee as were accessible with regard to your suggestion that the Massachusetts Bar Association undertake an investigation of the fraudulent practices which you allege have been committed by members of the bar.

"We are willing to recommend at once to the executive committee the appointment of a special committee to hear the evidence that may be submitted and to make recommendations to the executive committee as to the course of action that should be pursued, either in the way of a petition for a general investigation of the situation, or by action against the specified members of the bar for discipline.

"Of course the members of such a committee would serve without compensation.

"This procedure of a special committee, if adopted by the Bar Association, will be subject to one condition. I see from the papers that the attorney-general is considering the possibility of prosecutions.

"If his course is followed it would, of course, be futile to have two investigations going on at the same time, as he might be embarrassed.

SUGGESTS MEETING

"On this point, therefore, we should have to be advised by the attorney-general. We also feel that a conference with the attorney-general would be advisable before any final conclusion is to be arrived at as to the procedure or its initiation.

"It may well be that the attorney-general would prefer to bring this matter directly to the court himself, or has other procedure in view, and of course the bar association would wish to pursue such course of action as the officials of the Commonwealth may deem advisable."

Governor Fuller has received a telegram from Thomas A. Collins, manager of the Lawrence Automobile Club, stating that 10,000 Lawrence motorists "request you demand a reduction of 50 per cent. in compulsory automobile insurance rates which you were quoted as figuring in the morning press reports.

"As head of the Commonwealth any failure of a department head to meet a legitimate request from you, especially when the welfare of the motoring public is so vitally interested, should be treated as flagrant insubordination and drastic action against the subordinate should be swift and sure."

BYRD SEES POLE SHIP SAIL

New York, Aug. 25 (INS)—While thousands of persons jammed the pier and waved and cheered the City of New York, flagship of the Byrd Antarctic expedition, sailed at 1 p. m. today for New Zealand on the first leg of the trip to the bottom of the world.

The tug Macom with the department of street cleaning band aboard preceded the City of New York down the bay. Combr. Byrd and a party of friends were aboard the New York on the trip out of the harbor. Byrd and the official departure party then boarded the Macom and were brought back.

Capt. Frederick Melville of Lynn, Mass., was in command of the ship with Lieut. Thomas Mullroy, U. S. N., chief engineer.

Before the bark sailed Byrd commenting on reports that he was taking a large quantity of alcohol for the two-year stay in the south said only enough for medicinal purposes would be taken and that there would be no drinking on the expedition.

NABS 2 CLAM DIGGERS, ROUTS 75 AT REVERE

Driving his motorcycle to the water's edge, Patrolman Daniel Sweeney of Revere captured two alleged clam-diggers today and routed 75 others.

Turning his prisoners over to another policeman, Sweeney commandeered a motorboat at Point of Pines Yacht Club and gave chase to the others, who fled up the Pine river in 10 speedboats, but three outdistanced him. Scores of autoists on Lynnway bridge watched the dramatic chase. Sweeney fired thrice in the air.

FALL RIVER, PAWTUCKET, TO GET NEW POSTOFFICES

Washington, Aug. 25 (AP)—The building committee of the postoffice and treasury department today announced the selection of sites in 15 cities on which federal buildings will be erected. Among the cities and the sites selected were: Pawtucket, R. I., Montgomery and Humes st., submitted by the Hall Realty Co. Fall River, Mass., land adjoining the present postoffice.

Another return filed by the Massachusetts Fruit Growers' Association disclosed payment by that organization of $1500 to John W. Halsted for legislative agent service.

SHOW 'MAKING OF NEWSPAPER' AT ORPHEUM

By popular demand the two-reel educational motion picture, "The Making of a Newspaper" will be shown in Boston another week, Beginning Monday it will be displayed at Loew's Orpheum Theater, through special arrangement of Manager Victor Morris.

Everyone who viewed this thrilling picture at the State Theater this week was enthused over it. They were amazed at the glimpses they obtained of the interior of a modern newspaper plant.

The picture opens with scenes of the sinking of the British freight steamer Antinoe and rescue of the crew in a roaring gale by the crew of the U. S. Steamship President Roosevelt. These movies of this epic of the seas are actual newsreel "shots."

The spectator is then conveyed to the interior of a modern newspaper plant and shown how this big news event is handled, from the writing of the story in the editorial room by one of the "rewrite battery" to the sale of the finished product by a live newsboy.

He is taken through the composing room where the story is "set up" on high-priced modern linotype machines, to the art department where photographs sent by wireless are retouched, on to the engraving room where "cuts" are made for illustrations.

From there he is taken to the stereotype department, where plates for the presses are made from molds on hand, and then into the basement, where huge presses grind out papers by the thousands and automatically count them.

The picture is one that should be witnessed by young and old.

No school child should miss it. No adult who considers himself well informed should fail to see it.

13-GUN SALUTE TO AUSTRALIAN SHIP IN HUB

tralian navy, arrived off Finn's Ledge between Graves' Light and Winthrop, at 8 o'clock and an hour and 10 minutes later was being nosed into Pier 3 by navy tugs.

As the cruiser was being berthed the Australian flag was broken out at her stern and the band played stirring music.

The first man aboard when the gangplank was in place was Capt. J. S. M. Ritchie, Naval attache at the British Embassy, accompanied by Capt. A. Knothe, his assistant. They were followed by Commander P. K. Robottom, aide to Admiral Philip N. Andrews, commanding the First Naval District, and Capt. James C. Crocker, aide to Maj.-Gen. Preston Brown, commanding the First Corps Area.

Then came Francis E. Evans, acting British Consul General, wearing a black uniform and cocked hat, both trimmed with gold braid, who was received by Admiral Hyde and his staff while the crew stood at attention.

Among the first aboard the cruiser were a crew of telephone men, who had connections with the Navy Yard switchboard established in a short time.

Admiral Andrews and Gen. Brown went aboard the Australia and paid ceremonial calls on Admiral Hyde, while he afterward returned.

CALLS AT STATE HOUSE

Admiral Hyde then went to the State House, where he was received by Lieut.-Gov. Frank G. Allen, whom he entertained at lunch on board the cruiser Monday. Owing to a previous engagement the Lieutenant-Governor was forced to decline regretfully.

The visiting naval officer and his staff traveled in a Packard sedan sporting the flag of the Commonwealth, which, with his private chauffeur, Thomas A. Pelton, was placed at the disposal of Admiral Hyde by Governor Alvan T. Fuller.

The cruiser will be open to the public tomorrow and Tuesday afternoons from 2 to 5. Passes are not needed, but children unaccompanied by adults will not be permitted to enter the Navy Yard.

A feature of the visit of the Australia to this port will be a proceeding which originated at a conference between Capt. Robottom and E. E. Keevin, field secretary of The Harry E. Burroughs Newsboys Foundation. When Admiral Hyde returns to Australia he will request the newsboys of Sydney to furnish him with the names and address of ten newsboys of that city.

As soon as they are received they will be forwarded to Boston, and ten Massachusetts newsboys, all under 14, will be selected by the foundation to write messages of goodwill to their fellow "newsies" "Down Under."

Mayor' Committee Waits in Rain to Greet Admiral

All dressed up but with no place to go—except home—Mayor Nichols' official reception committee finally went home today after waiting more than three hours at City Hall to receive Rear-Admiral C. F. Hyde of the visiting cruiser Australia.

Wearing their frock coats, their gray gloved trousers and their silk hats the committee was on hand shortly before 11 a. m. when Rear-Admiral Hyde was scheduled to call after paying his respects at the State House.

cline: Mayor Thomas H. Green headed the party, which included George H. Johnson, director of celebrations; Edward Condon, the Mayor's secretary; George Reed and Nicholas de Cicco, under secretaries, and others. Mayor Nichols himself was said to be "out of town."

Eleven o'clock came and went, but the admiral came not and a slight case of the fidgets became manifest in the welcoming committee.

"Wonder where they are?" said Acting Mayor Green.

"I can't account for it," said George Johnson.

Tall hats were laid aside and easy chairs were sought. Time passed, as time always does. Condon glanced at his watch.

"It is 12:30. I'm going to lunch," he said.

He went. De Cicco and others followed. Mr. Johnson, the official welcomer, repaired to an ante chamber and removed his greeting clothes and departed.

At 1:30 only Green and Reed remained and Reed not for long. Finally Acting Mayor Green alone was left, pacing the mayor's office.

At 2 o'clock he took off his frock coat.

"I don't believe they coming," he said. There was none to correct this observation.

He went to the telephone and called Mayor Nichols somewhere, presumably at Duxbury. When he had finished conversing with the mayor, the acting mayor gave out a lengthy statement in which occurred the phrases:

"It seems a trifle strange . . . pessed by City Hall . . . established custom . . . we were advised . . apparent slight to the city . . . spare no efforts . . . we did our utmost . . . at a loss to understand the indifference."

Then acting Mayor Green himself being all dressed up and with no place to go except home—went home.

SENTENCE ON U. S. GIRLS ANNULLED IN TURKEY

Constantinople, Aug. 25 (AP)—A sentence of three days, recently imposed by the Brousa petty court upon three American teachers charged with religious propaganda, has been annulled by the court of appeals and the cases will be retried.

The women are Miss Edith Sanderson of Berkeley, Cal.; Miss Lucile Day and Miss Jennie Jilson, all American teachers in the American school at Brousa.

Hail, Peace Hath Come to World!

Paris, Aug. 25 (AP)—Robert Underwood Johnson, former American ambassador to Italy and long a champion of various efforts toward peace, has written a "Hymn for the Pact of Peace," which he has inscribed to Foreign Minister Briand of France and Secretary of State Kellogg. It reads:

Lift up your heads ye peoples,
The miracle has come.
No longer are ye helpless,
No longer are ye dumb.

Those whom ye craved to lead you,
Your path of yearning dare,
The few perjure with feasting,
The millions praise with prayer.

Lift up your hearts ye peoples,
Cheer every doubting soul,
That found the road a harrier,
Behind you and your goal.

Go say to him that feareth
That peace is but a wraith,
"Not rulers, but the people
Shall seal the people's faith."

Lift up your hands, ye peoples
And take the sacred vow,
"To war's age-honored Moloch,
No longer shall we bow."

Your leaders who have followed
Arise and follow them,
Oh, hear ye not the angels
Singing of Bethlehem!

KELLOGG PRAYS BEFORE FRENCH HERO'S TOMB

Paris, Aug. 25 (AP)—After a good night's rest at the American Embassy, Secretary of State Kellogg today attended a long program of official social events in honor of the statesmen here to sign the war renunciation treaty Monday.

Frenchmen who have talked with him have been impressed by his simple, dignified manner and his insistence that credit for the work about to reach its culmination is due to M. Briand's initiative.

This has been a notable source of gratification to the French people and is referred to by almost all the newspapers.

In his way of doing things unannounced, the secretary gave Paris a surprise early in the morning when he appeared at the tomb of the "Unknown Soldier" at the Arc de Triomphe.

After laying a wreath on the tomb he knelt before the shrine and remained in meditation for a moment. Then, after rising and standing at attention a full minute, he turned away.

The few photographers who happened to be present at the time obtained a unique picture of Mr. Kellogg kneeling before the tomb, the first public official so far as is known ever to have knelt before it as well as the first ever to have placed upon it a wreath bearing no inscription.

The few bystanders who witnessed the statesman's tribute were deeply touched. A policeman who had been present on hundreds of such occasions expressed his emotion in the simple observation "that's really chic."

Paris began to unfold bunting this morning in honor of the assembling notables. All public buildings and many private ones are decorated, flying flags of all the nations to be represented at Monday's signature ceremony.

Erin Welcomes Anti-War Treaty, Says Cosgrave

London, Aug. 25 (AP)—Ireland must be included among the nations that are most keen on the treaty for the outlawry of war, said President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State, as he left London today en route for Paris to sign the Kellogg pact.

The signing will be the event of this decade," he said, "and we will have an example from the leading nations of the earth of remarkable good will and the desire among states to promote peace among men."

Two other signatories who left for Paris today were Senator A. J. McLachlan of the Australian commonwealth and Sir James Parr, New Zealand high commissioner.

Texas Guinan to Get Wild Welcome in Old Home Town

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 25 (INS)—Texas Guinan, the Los Angeles girl who has made good in the big city," is coming home August 31 to one of the biggest receptions ever given a former resident of this city.

There will be a big reception at the depot, band, bands, cowboys, motorcycle police, friends, flowers and everything, but, as Al Jolson, who will be there, would say, "You ain't seen nothin' yet."

Out at the Breakfast Club, in the Pavilion of Friendship, on August 31 at $5 a plate, they will welcome her with a menu that would have cost $500 a plate in her night club.

Mayor James Rolph, Jr., of San Francisco will preside as toastmaster, thus giving it the tone of a statewide affair.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

THE daughter of the Forsythe Wickeses of the Newport summer colony rode her horse, Tornado, in several classes. Miss Wickes is to be seen frequently on the Casino courts.

MISS MARIAN FORSYTHE WICKES

THE Vanderbilt coach, "Venture," is the spectacle of the Newport Horse Show. Mr. Vanderbilt handles his handsome grays perfectly. With him on the box is his little daughter. Emily, and Mrs. John O'Donnell. Other guests are Lady Horne, Mrs. Daniel Jones, Miss Louise Waring, Mrs. Moorehead Patterson, Stuart Forbes of Boston and Hamilton, Paul FitzSimons and Mr. O'Donnell. At extreme right is Mrs. Moorehead Patterson, a pretty young matron, while handling the reins is Mrs. Frederic Cameron Church, Jr., a particular star in the Newport firmament.

HIGH COLORS ARE FAVORED BY NEWPORT'S SMART SET

NEWPORT, R. I., AUG. 25—HIGH COLORS ARE HIGH FAVORITES at Newport this season. Whether it be at the Casino, or taking luncheon picnic fashion on Bailey's exclusive strand; or merely tooling along "the avenue" on the ordinary Newport round, splashes of gorgeous sunset coloring, outrivaling any rainbow that ever arched primary colors across a rain fresh sky, meet the optics. There is a flame color, a red most vividly arresting, sometimes called lacquer, sometimes lipstick, sometimes firecracker. Above and beyond all others it flaunts daringly against Newport's verdant background.

IT PLEASES MISS MARIAN FORSYTHE WICKES, DAUGHTER of Mr. and Mrs. Forsythe Wickes, to wear a costly warm coat of this brilliant red, as she motors from a morning of tennis at the Casino. And it pleases the eye of the beholder that the shining motor Miss Wickes tools has a gay red trimming and twinkling red wheels to match and emphasizes the red of her wrap. Like daughter, like mother, say Madame and Mademoiselle Wickes. The former's horseshow costume was joyously bright, a coat and a wide chapeau of the gladsome red, to complete an ensemble including smart red shoes and a frock of red and oyster white.

AT ANOTHER HOUR OF THE same day Mrs. Wickes appeared in an ensemble of golden sunny yellow, with the favorite wide brimmed hat to successfully balk the warm August sun. Bright blue for shoes, to band her white frock and color triangle scarf effectively was the choice of high tones made by Miss Natalie Winslow, blonde and lovely daughter of the Cameron MacRae Winslows, frocked Miss Natalie Buyard Merrill, as that tall and slender young woman made a Casino appearance, after dancing the night through as honor guest of her aunt, Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, at a brilliant party at "Harbour Court."

MRS. CORNELIUS TANGEMAN'S SLENDER height carried with distinction her smart frock of sky blue crepe. And Mrs. Tangeman's scarf wrap of sunset red was dashing and effective. Flag red and bunting blue, primitive colors on a tan linen triangle, was swung about the shoulders of Mrs. Herbert Parker's snug blue reefer that was for all the world like a sailor boy's, even to its brass buttons. Mrs. Parker's nautical kerchief and her nautical costume blended excellently, this cosmopolitan having a flair for perfection in accoutrement. She and Mr. Parker, hailing from London, are Newport guests at the Hotel Viking.

BOSTON'S NEWPORT RECKONING AS TO numbers is not overpowering. Individually, however, it is easily topnotch. Miss Anita Potts wearing bright blue stripes in jersey effect is a gay mosaic in the Casino pattern. Not so bright, but effective as always, is Miss Eleonora Sears, whose motor is a long nosed affair of British make, and whose garb at the Casino for the invitation tournament is essentially Sears—like. Therefore, it is tailored, and, therefore, a soft sand brown, her favorite color; almost as brown as the glorious tan Miss Sears sports because of various tennis matches beneath a pelting sun.

THE EPITOME OR COOLNESS, MRS. FREDERIC C. CHURCH, JR., plays a dashing match of tennis frocked in sky blue silk, sleeveless model that gives the player perfect freedom and adds a becoming coat of tan from shoulder to finger tips. Miss Marian Wickes darts about the courts sans stockings, to be sure, but with beautifully browned nether limbs bound at the ankles with green velvet straps. Mademoiselle adores the bright touch of color in her costume, and adheres strictly to this liking.

LAST EVENING BEAUTIFUL MIRAMAR, THE Alexander Hamilton Rice place, was a fairyland of color as Newport's best dined, danced and supped in honor of Miss Diana Dodge, daughter of Mrs. George Widener of Philadelphia. Miramar is a show place without additional touch of blossom or colored lights. But when an adored debutante is due for presentation, as last evening, decorators are allowed free rein with delightful results. Speaking of color, there's no motor on Bellevue's tree shaded length more eye-arresting than the brilliantly blue car Dr. Rice drives so expertly.

CERTAIN ORIGINAL SMART SETTERS SUCH as Mrs. Church prefer the Casino theater on a Saturday evening, there to be boxholder when week end guests are to be entertained. Society as a rule lends the eclat of its presence on Tuesdays and Wednesdays, but in Newport this season there's a sufficiency of brilliance to cover several theater evenings. Miss Claude Branch, the former Hope Carey of Providence, and now of Greenwich, comes to Newport for tonight's performance of "The Grand Duchess and the Waiter" to be a box hostess.

HOST PAR EXCELLENCE TO NEWPORT visitors is William H. Vanderbilt this season. Tennis players to the number of nearly four score will be guests of young Mr. Vanderbilt at Saturday evening's performance at the Casino Theatre. Then host and guests proceed to Oakland Farm where an enormous ball, with horse show, theater and tennis atmosphere, goes on as wind up of tennis and horse show week. Week in week out has the youthful multimillionaire been host at brilliant parties—supper parties; boat parties, dinners, dances and teas, and now on the coach "Venture."

ON THE BOX SEAT OF THE COACH "VENTURE," Mr Vanderbilt demonstrates with ease and precision his mastery of the reins and a high stepping four. Volleys of applause follow the spectacle, as handsome dappled grays cavort in intricate pattern about the show ring with Mr. Vanderbilt in perfect form. Little Miss Emily Vanderbilt snuggles under her pater's arm, on the front seat of the shining black and red "Venture." Mrs. John O'Donnell in blue, Lady Horne in pale gray, Mrs. Moorehead Patterson in violet and Miss Louise Waring in green, dressed up the coach brightly for its ring appearance.

FRENCH FLIERS FAIL IN HOP

Paris, Aug. 25 (INS)—Capt. Louis Goudouret, French ace, who hopped off with two companions at 5:07 o'clock this morning for a transatlantic flight to New York, returned to Le Bourget Field a short time later.

Goudouret made an unsatisfactory takeoff, running the entire length of the field before the plane rose into the air. When the machine did leave the ground it barely cleared the trees on the edge of the field.

Goudouret made a turn and then brought the plane back to the field. It landed so heavily that both tires upon the landing wheels burst. The fliers plan to make another attempt to get away when their plane is repaired.

THOUSANDS ENJOY SAIL TO PLYMOUTH

One of the most beautiful harbor excursions from Boston is that made on the big steamer "Betty Alden" of the Nantasket Line to the historic town of Plymouth on the south shore.

The trip to Plymouth on the water occupies three hours each way, with a two-hour stopover privilege allowed at Plymouth so that passengers may disembark and partake of a shore dinner and visit the many interesting places for which this town is famed. Foremost, of course, among these is Plymouth Rock, the landing place of the Pilgrims, which thousands of tourists visit each year.

DEFER BOOST IN COAL RATES

Proposed increases in coal rates, where the service is performed wholly within Massachusetts by the Boston & Albany, Boston & Maine and New Haven roads, were today suspended until December 28 by the Public Utility Commission.

The new rates originally asked for to take effect May 28, but were held up by protests from the Boston Chamber of Commerce, Associated Industries of New England, New England Paper and Pulp Traffic Association, Fall River Chamber of Commerce and the New Bedford Chamber of Commerce.

As the changes in rate structure are sought in other New England states, a hearing will be held at the Federal Building, Boston, October 1.

ALLEN LAUDS HIS PARTY RECORD AT SALEM RALLY

Lieut.-Gov. Frank G. Allen, G. O. BEAUTY AND THE CAKE EATER take a turn at companionate marriage (do you care for that)? in a bit of fluff called "Half a Bride" at the Keith-Albee Boston. In it Esther Ralston is the beauty and William J. Worthington doesn't use any brain cells either.

OLD THRILLER FOR NORMA TALMADGE

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 24—Channing Pollock's dramatic play, "The Sign on the Door," in which Marjorie Rambeau and other stage actresses scored memorable hits will do an encore in the films. That's not so strange, for good plays are frequently resurrected, but it's a little out of the ordinary that Norma Talmadge, who made "The Sign on the Door" for First National, should again be starred in the same story for United Artists. It is some time since Norma emoted as the young wife in "The Sign on the Door," and styles have changed, also ideas on filming. So the play will be greatly changed—probably even the name will be discarded.

We haven't heard a word about Antonio Moreno for ages. Usually we announce that Tony is at this or that studio, but apparently he has been enjoying a vacation. Now his holiday is over, for he has been called by First National to play opposite Billie Dove in "The 20th Day of October." Frank Borzage, they are going to change that title. It may have significance in Russia, but it sounds like Halloween in America. Also it would give any headline writer a pain in the neck and any exhibitor trying to electric light it a bad headache. Tong and Billie sound like a most promising team.

I AM certainly glad Lena Malena finally has been signed somewhere. The last few weeks I have had dozens of telephone calls telling me that she was being tested for this or that picture and that she had grown so wonder that she was not to break out almost any day as a leading woman. Well, she hasn't a leading role, but one of the important parts in "Tropic Madness," Bob Wardell picture for First N. O. Learning Joy, who left the stage to be featured, has started work on his same "Tropic Madness."

* * *

Tell me one thing. Why don't these directors go out and develop their own talent? Here we have Hazel Dawn, a mighty good director, lamenting that he cannot find a leading woman for "Hardboiled," a story by Arthur Somers Roche. Says Hazel: "If only I could have Louise Brooks, who is just the type, well, there must be other girls who look like Louise and have her ability as an actress."

Enrico Caruso, Jr., Appears Personally at Scollay Sq.

Enrico Caruso, Jr., who appears personally on the stage of the Scollay Square Olympia next week, dreams of some day becoming as famous a singer as his illustrious father. Young Caruso and his brother, Rudolfo, are now enmeshed in the extensive litigation of the New Jersey courts concerning the settlement of the late Enrico Caruso's estate. The two sons are contending for what they regard as a fair portion of the royalties constantly accruing from the sale of phonograph records. Young Enrico is said to have inherited a great deal of the amazing quality of voice possessed by his father and, as it seems, if the court awards are sufficiently generous for him, he plans to use the money to complete his vocal studies in Europe. He is confident that some day he will be singing operatic leads in the Metropolitan Opera.

Enrico Caruso, Jr.

VERY "HOMESICK"

Sunny Cohen and Marjorie Beebe, two leading Fox comedy players, are teamed for the first time in "Homesick," a story of six days and six nights of bike riding.

Shy Soubrette

ALICE DU VAL is one of the felicitous fair ones in the "Girls From Happyland" burlesque troupe at the Gayety.

STATES ILLS OF DRAMA

New blood and new plays is the urgent need of the American theater of today, says Fred Eric, newest addition to the B. F. Clive company at the Copley, which now houses "The Bellamy Trial."

"Not enough opportunity is given for development of our young material—acting talent and playwrights. Well, I had a couple of nice cows so I furnished milk for the neighbors. Hay was almost next door.

"Well, he got the idea of having a neighborhood minstrel show on his place, and I organized it. I'd never said anything to him about being a professional. I just went ahead and we had our show. And when it was all over he said, quite seriously: 'Look here, Mr. Van, you seem to have dramatic talent. Why don't you go on the stage?'

"I looked the ex-Secretary of State square in the eye, and never cracked a smile. 'That's a good idea, Mr. Hay.' I told him. 'I'll take your advice. And, by the way, while we're on the subject, why don't YOU go into politics?'"

Fred Eric

Now I'm not enough experienced to say definitely, but I believe the trouble is with the theatrical world, whose interest is prompted more by their real estate holdings than their love of the dramatic art, contends Mr. Eric.

The remedy for this defect, he says, lies in the community theater, one in each large city and the play house to be a part of a "wheel" system.

This community theater, he goes on to say, would not be municipally owned nor subsidized in any form and neither would it be endowed. Either would tend to place it under the wrong kind of control or make it open to subversive influences of political theorists, faddists and parasites in general. The community theater must be independent and self supporting.

FILM FARE FOR THE WEEK

METROPOLITAN—Fay Wray and Gary Cooper in "The First Kiss" (first run), adapted from the magazine story, "Four Brothers," by Tristram Tupper. A tale of love and river piracy; bold deeds on dark nights; mystery and melodrama. The cast includes Lane Chandler, Leslie Fenton and Malcolm Williams. Rowland V. Lee directed. A Paramount picture. On the stage, John Murray Anderson's Franco-American revue, "Parisian Nights," with Foster dancing girls and Gene Rodemich bandshow.

LOEW'S STATE—John Barrymore in "Tempest" (first run), adapted from an original screen story by C. Gardner Sullivan. Turbulent romance and adventure story of the Russian revolution. The cast features Camilla Horn, Louis Wolheim, George Fawcett and Michael Visaroff. Sam Taylor directed. A United Artists' picture. The stage features are: Graceella and Theodore in a musical revue, and Carlton Emmy and his Mad Wags.

NEW BOSTON—Esther Ralston in "Half a Bride" (first run), adapted from Arthur Stringer's magazine story, "White Hands." A high spirited girl meets True Love on a desert Isle. The cast includes Gary Cooper, William J. Worthington and Freeman Wood. Gregory La Cava directed. A Paramount picture. Also vaudeville.

SCOLLAY—Richard Dix in "Warming Up." A romance of the big league, with a thrilling baseball game in the Yankee stadium as climax. Accompanied by sound effects. Others in the cast are Jean Arthur, Philo McCullough and Claude King. Fred Newmeyer directed. A Paramount picture. Also vaudeville.

OLYMPIA AND FENWAY—"Lights of New York" (second week). Lurid melodrama of Broadway and Main Street, wherein all the players are heard to speak right through the play. The first "all-talk" picture, and therefore interesting for that reason if for no other. The cast features Helene Costello, Cullen Landis, Gladys Brockwell, Mary Carr and Wheeler Oakman. Bryan Foy directed. A Warner Brothers' picture.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—Greta Garbo in "The Mysterious Lady," adapted from the story by Ludwig Wolff. Diplomacy goes romantic in the high places. Cast includes Conrad Nagel, Gustav von Seyffertitz and Edward Connelly. Fred Niblo directed. A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture. Also vaudeville.

MODERN AND BEACON—(Starting today) Irene Rich in "Powder My Back" (first run), adapted from the story by Jerome Kingston. Musical comedy queen gets her man. Cast includes Audrey Ferris and Andre Beranger. Roy Del Ruth directed. A Warner Brothers' picture. Also Conrad Nagel and Myrna Loy in "The Girl From Chicago" (first run), glittering melodrama of guns, gals and gangs. Ray Enright directed. A Warner Brothers' picture.

TWO PERFECT PROFILES

MIKE AND IKE are not alike; that is, if noses count for anything. In "Tempest" at Loew's state the opposite extremes in manly outlines are paired for your admiration in Louis Wolheim and John Barrymore.

Wilful Wife

DORIS UNDERWOOD is an excellent facial disturbance for Taylor Holmes in "The Great Necker" at the Wilbur.

BILLY CALLS THE TURN

Billy B. Van, "grand old man" of musical comedy, was reminiscing with a group of old friends last night between sets of "Sunny Days" at the Shubert.

"Say," he demanded, "did you know I was once John Hay's milkman?"

"Sure I was. Mr. Hay had retired from the Cabinet and I was resting up in the summers between shows, and we were both living way up in New Hampshire. Well, I had a couple of nice cows so I furnished milk for the neighbors. Hay was almost next door.

"Well, he got the idea of having a neighborhood minstrel show on his place, and I organized it. I'd never said anything to him about being a professional. I just went ahead and we had our show. And when it was all over he said, quite seriously: 'Look here, Mr. Van, you seem to have dramatic talent. Why don't you go on the stage?'

"I looked the ex-Secretary of State square in the eye, and never cracked a smile. 'That's a good idea, Mr. Hay.' I told him. 'I'll take your advice. And, by the way, while we're on the subject, why don't YOU go into politics?'"

Burlesque Will Be "Bigger and Better" in Boston

Boston will, this season, see better and bigger burlesque than has ever appeared in this city, according to Max Michaels, who has been named manager of the Gayety theater for the coming season.

He recently returned from New York where he spent much time with the chiefs of the new Mutual Burlesque Circuit and reports that the combining of the old Columbia circuit with the Mutual circuit has resulted in a most cheerful outlook for this type of entertainment.

Looking Ahead

SEPTEMBER 3—
George M. Cohan's "Whispering Friends," a farce, at the Hollis.
SEPTEMBER 10—
"Golden Dawn," an operetta, at the Shubert.
"Just a Minute," a musical play, at the Tremont.
Gene Buck's "Take the Air" at the Wilbur.

SPRINGS OFF BENCH TO SUCCESS

Rivaling the well-known elevator boy, Frank McHugh, comedian in "Excess Baggage," at the Plymouth, has had his share of ups and downs. That was before good fortune took the wheel and steered him into recognition overnight. It wasn't so long ago that McHugh was what is known in vaudeville offices as "a bench hound," which is Broadway argot for the host of untried aspirants who, with unbounded confidence in their selling ability, haunt the anterooms of the outer offices.

Frank McHugh

Awaiting the call which may come today, tomorrow or may never come, and a conscious outcast, the actor of this genus is ever ready at a moment's notice to avail himself of his only chance, namely, to jump into a sudden vacancy in a program. In which event, the vaudeville booker's first recourse is left-over talent.

Stock Companies in Two of "Netoco" Chain Theaters

From the office of Samuel Pinanski, president of "Netoco," New England Theaters Operating Corporation, comes the announcement that he has engaged two companies of the Al Luttringer Players to present stage productions at two of his theaters, the Franklin Park, Dorchester, and the Waldorf, Waltham.

Netoco's venture into stock dates from this summer, when one of the Luttringer companies played an engagement at the Waltham house.

The Luttringer Players will make their bow at that theater on September 10th, when they will offer Avery Hopwood's comedy drama, "Why Men Leave Home." Ann Kimley, who is known to theater-goers for her performances in "Craig's Wife," and the "Passion Flower," will be featured.

EATON GIRLS RIVALS IN THEATER

If your brother or sister were a famous actor or actress you would consider yourself very lucky and regard this fact as an asset for yourself, wouldn't you? But in the case of Doris Eaton it does not work out so very well. Doris' sister is none other than Mary Eaton, the famous musical comedy star. And Doris is now in musical comedy, having a featured role in Sammy Lee's new production, "Cross My Heart," which opens Monday evening at the Colonial.

Although Doris and Mary are the most companionable of sisters, there exists a friendly competition between them. Mary, of course, has been on the stage for many years longer than her sister Doris. But the younger sister has been making rapid strides and according to Mary it will not be long before the name of Doris Eaton is also in electric lights as the star of a musical comedy.

Gladys Brockwell Played Speaking Part at Three

Gladys Brockwell, who easily runs away with the acting honors in "Lights of New York," all-talking film at the Olympia and Fenway, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., and made her stage bow as an infant in the arms of her mother, Lillian Brockwell, a well known star of the time. She played her first speaking part at three and when seven was a member of a stock company. Her first vaudeville tour was with Franklin Ardell over the Sullivan and Considine Circuit.

Gladys Brockwell

She played her first motion picture lead in "The Counterfeiter's Wife" opposite Romaine Fielding, later going to Inceville where she appeared with Sessue Hayakawa, William Hart, Robert Edeson and others.

'HAND OVER THEM JOOLS!'

NO GENTLEMAN ever pinches a lady's arm unless he happens to be a crook in the movies. In "The Girl From Chicago," at the Modern and Beacon, William Russell and Myrna Loy make off they mean it.

Embarrassing Moment?

Helene Costello, star of "Lights of New York," at the Olympia, tells this one: Irate hotel guest phones room clerk that his rest is disturbed by much running up and down the corridor outside. "Sorry, sir," croons the ever polite clerk, "but we have no control over the fire department."

STAGE AND SCREEN

Oh, Them Nipped Nails!

Pity poor Esther Ralston. For the sake of realism in her new picture at the Keith-Albee Boston, "Half a Bride," the golden blonde star sacrificed the well-pointed ends of her finger nails for a rough and ready scene on a desert isle with Gary Cooper, her desert idol. Ho! Hum!

"FIRST KISS" IS WORTHY FILMPLAY

By LEO GAFFNEY

Well it seems that "The First Kiss" newly arrived at the Metropolitan, is not that kind of a film after all.

Rather than being the huge chunk of chocolate fudge, the exceedingly inept title suggests, it is, instead quite a substantial little bit of filming. Honest!

Despite its highly unannoying cover there are not more than three kisses all told. There's "repression" for you.

Gary Cooper and Fay Wray are the two kids in the case, Mr. Cooper, soon as the eldest brother in a shiftless family of "poor white trash," down on Chesapeake Bay, picks up an oyster here and there; and in that way manages to occasionally pick up a few dollars.

When the young lady, impersonated by Fay Wray, calls the lady fondly by his right name, up jumps Mr Cooper and treats his dear brothers to as fine a lacing as you would want. The object being to wake them up.

The brothers are cuffed off to college where they all become respectable gentlemen in due course. In the meantime the industrious and punitive elder brother runs afoul of the law and, incidentally, goes on with his romance.

Rowland V. Lee is the director to thank. Fortunately, he was able to take his troupe to the Maryland shore and get his scenes first hand. None of your Hollywood back drops and studio fakes. Mr. Lee's Maryland is the genuine "Our Maryland."

Excellent performances are contributed by the two co-stars and "the family" as portrayed by Leslie Fenton, Lane Chandler, Paul Fix and Malcolm Williams. The story, by the way, was taken from Tristram Tupper's book, "Four Brothers." And why, in the name of Reason Incarnate, the producers felt compelled to change its title to such a silly one as "The First Kiss" is beyond all powers of even meagre comprehension.

The new stage show at the Metropolitan, "Parisian Nights," is supplied by John Murray Anderson.

VISIBLE AND VOCAL IN CURRENT BILLS

AUDREY MAPLE of the golden locks and queenly grace, deals gently with a prodigal husband in "Sunny Days," Shubert.

"TAKE YOURSELF SOMEWHERE ELSE" is the kind invitation Helen Costello cordially extends to Wheeler Oakman in "Lights of New York" at the Olympia and Fenway. Can you hear it? It's a "talky" you know, and you simply have to listen.

PATRICIA CALVERT takes the dress stand for Mr. Clive amidst ecstatic applause in "The Bellamy Trial" at the Copley.

Ballroom Steamer Enjoys Popular Patronage

The ballroom steamer Mayflower, owned and operated by the Nantasket Line, nightly sails over Boston harbor, crowded with dancers and pleasure seekers using this means of spending an evening away from the city.

The Mayflower Orchestra provides music for the dancers.

NEXT WEEK'S NEW BILLS

MINNESOTA SWINGS SHARPLY TO HOOVER, STRAW VOTE SHOWS

SMITH LEAD IS SHOWN IN R.I.

By CHARLES N. WHEELER
Noted Political Analyst

Chicago, Aug. 25—Three high spots stand out in today's tabulation of the nationwide straw vote gathered by the Boston Evening American and other Hearst publications.

These high spots are:

Hoover has the comfortable lead in the figures of 157,156 to 151,-097 for Governor Smith.

First returns show Minnesota is swinging to the Hoover camp, an indication that the big La Follette vote of four years ago is not going to Smith in any appreciable numbers.

A poll of 5 per cent of the voters in every one of Milwaukee's 318 precincts indicates that the New York Governor will carry that city by better than 2 to 1, over Hoover.

The Minnesota figures give the Republicans all the best of the argument, both with respect to the women and men vote. Hoover has a total of 1829 to 1099 for Smith.

WOMEN AID HOOVER

Minnesota and Wisconsin were two of the states in which the Democratic party was all but wiped off the slate in 1924.

The Minnesota tabulations emphasize what seems to be the case with all of the agrarian states, namely, that the women are flocking to Hoover in large numbers.

New and interesting figures from Pennsylvania with the country folks getting into the picture, show the keystone commonwealth following its usual Republican tradition and swinging behind Hoover.

The early returns from this section were confined for the most part to Pittsburgh, with the rural districts reporting, however, the Smith and Hoover lead almost wiped out. The totals are Smith, 2151; Hoover 2112. Outside of the mining districts and Allegheny County (Pittsburgh) the drift now appears to be strongly toward the former commerce secretary.

VEERS TO SMITH

New Jersey appears to be veering to the New York governor's camp, and the electoral vote are to be decided in the popular vote of the cities along the coast, there probably would be little doubt of the result.

But the returns are mostly from Hudson County thus far, and Hudson County has agreed with Senator Edwards on at least one occasion, that the whole State would be "wet at the Atlantic ocean."

While the present indications are Democratic the rural districts appear to be strongly Hoover.

The Rhode Island totals should brighten up the Democratic chiefs. The totals show Smith out in front with 3796 to 2023.

Hoover is still in the lead in the grand totals in New York State, although the upstate vote is not piling up sufficiently to reassure the Republican managers.

California is swinging to Hoover by a big lead, while in Connecticut it is a neck-and-neck struggle.

A surprising feature of the late figures is the lead Hoover has in Florida. The totals are Hoover, 1555; Smith, 1161. On the other hand, Smith appears to be running well in Georgia.

Hoover is leading in all three border states, Maryland, Kentucky and Missouri, and out in front in Tennessee.

235 ELECTORAL VOTES CLAIMED FOR HOOVER

Washington, Aug. 25 (INS)—While his lieutenants boasted that his western trip had carried him within 51 electoral votes of election, Herbert Hoover today picked up the reins to run his own campaign in the East.

He made no plan for the week-end was to get 775 hours sleep. He called in on some of the rest lost on his 3500-mile trip from California to Washington. On Monday he will open his presidential campaign office in a fashionable residence near his own home.

The Hoover claims for electoral votes undoubtedly will be disputed by Democratic leaders. His advisers nevertheless were confident, and so too was Hoover, that he will carry the east in almost landslide proportions from the Mississippi river to the Atlantic seaboard.

CLAIMS 235 VOTES.

The Hoover men claimed 235 electoral votes "were in the bag," while but 266 are required for election. The states listed as "certain" for Hoover were:

Pennsylvania, 38; Ohio, 24; Indiana, 15; Illinois, 29; Michigan, 15; Minnesota, 12; Iowa, 13; North Dakota, 5; Nebraska, 8; Oklahoma, 10; Kansas, 10; Colorado, 6; Wyoming, 3; Utah, 4; Nevada, 3; Idaho, 4; Oregon, 5; Washington, 7; California 13; Arizona, 3; West Virginia, 8.

Hoover has a great area, including the whole Atlantic seaboard, from which to pick up the missing 31 votes and to recover whatever states he might lose from his "certain" list.

The claims did not include the concededly Republican states of New England, such as Maine with 6 votes, and New Hampshire and Vermont with 4 each. They did not include the "doubtful" states of Montana, New Mexico and South Dakota, or Kentucky, Missouri and Maryland on the border. They included no states from the South, although the Hooverites still wage fights to win Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Florida and North Carolina.

IGNORE DRY ISSUE.

New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Connecticut and Rhode Island were left out of the estimate, for the Republicans will go after New York with energy, but Hoover leaders believed he can win the election without New York.

Hoover will not add to his previous published announcements for some time to come and only if developments of the campaign justify further discussion of them.

Hoover came home confident he had won the farm belt to his farm relief program. He told friends farm relief had been taken out of the presidential campaign, since the Democrats had failed to make any real issue of it.

A crowd of 2000 greeted Hoover's return last night.

She's Engaged

TO WED BRITON

Miss Ruth Neyhart, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adnah Neyhart of Redgate Farm, Framingham, today announced her engagement to wed Winthrop Pyemont of London, England. Miss Neyhart is a Junior Leaguer and a member of the Vincent Club. Pyemont is a graduate from Harvard Law School and a war veteran.

100,000 GREET 'AL' SMITH AT JERSEY CAMP

Sea Girt, N. J., Aug. 25 (AP)—Here, in the same surroundings where Woodrow Wilson mapped out his campaign plans 14 years ago, which carried him to the presidency, Governor Smith today found himself the central figure of a huge Democratic rally intended to boost his own chances for that high office.

With the cheers of crowds of several New Jersey cities through which he passed yesterday by automobile still vividly impressed on his mind, the Democratic presidential nominee, together with Governors Moore of New Jersey, and Ritchie of Maryland late today were to review the State National Guard regiments in encampment.

It was estimated that more than 100,000 persons would turn out for the "Governor's Day" affair, which is arranged each year and which Governor Smith has attended three or four times before.

Governor Smith planned merely to review the troops and to stick to his determination to steer clear of outdoor speeches as much as possible.

With Governors Moore and Ritchie, who attended a "Governor's Ball" in honor of the three state executives at the New Monmouth Hotel at Spring Lake last night, the Democratic presidential candidate was to ride around the guard camp in an old-fashioned barouche, between long lines of the State troops and in full view of thousands of spectators.

Fog Sends Hub Air Mail Miles Off of Its Course

Nearly an hour after he was due in Boston today, Pilot Capt. Richard W. Mackie of the air mail emerged from a fog bank and found himself over Portsmouth, N. H.

He turned and headed for the Boston Airport, where he casually reported that due to the fog his trip from Hartford had consumed two hours instead of one.

While other pilots were lauding him for keeping to the air in the face of such danger, and were trying to worm more details out of him, Capt. Mackie's only comment was, "It's all in the game."

DRY QUIZ COST IN 8 YRS. PUT AT 500 MILLION

Sea Girt, N. J., Aug. 25 (INS)—United States Senator Edward I. Edwards today challenged the expenditure of "some $500,000,000 in eight years by the Republican administration to investigate prohibition."

"Prohibition is not meeting the demands of temperance and Governor Smith frankly tells you so. Corruption, fraud and deceit have robbed Volsteadism of every vestige of decency," Edwards declared.

"Washington today is surfeited with commissions, bureaucracy is sniffing the life out of democracy. We have been investigating prohibition for eight years at the staggering cost of $500,000,000 and what have we discovered? Thousands of speakeasies, innumerable bootleggers, poisonous liquors, bribery rampant with all of its attendant debauchery of public officials.

Marlboro Tax Rate Jumps

Marlboro, Aug. 25 (AP)—Marlboro's tax rate for 1928 was announced today as $54.70, an increase of $1.40, making it what is said to be the highest in the city's history.

FIGHT 2-ALARM DOWNTOWN FIRE

damage to the latter structure and water damage to 68-70 High st.

Firemen fought the flames from the High st. side as well as from the narrow square, where the burning structure is situated. Smoke handicapped them seriously and gas masks were resorted to.

The upper floors were a seething mass of flames, and tons of water were poured on. Firemen scaled ladders and carried their hose lines into the interior.

When the flames were practically extinguished, smouldering heaps of waste were towed out into the street and soaked with water. Besides the bailing company's quarters there was considerable damage to storerooms of the Dayton Soap Company.

Fire trucks satirring through downtown streets on the way to the scene of the fire caused a general halt in traffic at all intersections, and for a short time the streams of automobiles were at a standstill everywhere.

The cause of the fire was not determined.

LYNN MAN AND WOMAN HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Richard Voulo, 60, shoe manufacturer of New York st., Lynn, and Miss Margaret McCarraston of 19 Forest st. that city, were seriously injured today when the steering gear of an automobile in which they were riding broke and the car crashed into a stone wall on Chestnut st., Lynn, and overturned.

Officer John Casey and pedestrians lifted the car and the man and woman were sent to the Lynn Hospital. Mrs. McCarraston was injured about the body while Coulso sustained lacerations on the head and face and possible internal injuries.

CHAMBERLAIN WILL SEE THE WEST COAST

London, Aug. 25 (AP)—Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, is planning to leave England next Thursday on a voyage for the benefit of his health which will carry him as far as California. He will be accompanied by Lady Chamberlain and their two children.

Their itinerary takes in Bermuda, Havana, and Cristobal where the party will disembark for a delightful day, continuing through the Panama Canal to San Francisco for a holiday in California, by rail to Vancouver and then overland to Montreal.

HOOVER'S SON, HARVARD EMPLOYE, IN AIR SURVEY

Chicago, Aug. 25 (AP)—Herbert Hoover, Jr., son of the Republican nominee, today began conducting a survey of the economics of aviation. Young Hoover, instructor on the research staff of Harvard University, is here in the interests of Harvard and the Guggenheim Memorial Foundation. He foreswore all political discussion and said the Hoover family was leaving that to the head of the house. He spoke with interest of the aviation survey.

TEXTILE COUNCIL GETS LABOR DAY PARADE PERMIT

New Bedford, Aug. 25 (AP)—Mayor Ashley today granted the textile council a permit for a parade on Labor Day. He specified that no children under 14 and no banners or placards carrying national and State fairs were to be permitted. The textile council plans a demonstration on the holiday and hopes to make it of statewide significance.

Nahant Tax Rate Drops

Nahant property owners rolled to day at announcement of a 33 reduction from last year in the 1928 tax rate. The new rate is $30.50, made possible by smaller town appropriations and use of last year's surplus, according to Harry C. Wilson, chairman of the assessors.

LAST RITE FOR E'THINGHAM

H. B. Cabot. Miss Amelia Ames, Mrs. W. H. Ames, Richard Harte, Arnvas Ames, Evelyn Ames, Mrs. Curtis Guild, Mrs. Lavinia Frothingham, Mrs. Nathaniel Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. William Dunnell, Bronx Frothingham, Mrs. F. S. Converse, Mrs. George Fearing and Mr. and Mrs. Miffin Frothingham.

Noted personages were Gen. and Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards, Senator David I. Walsh, Speaker of the House Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, assistant secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Ogden Mills of New York, U. S. Senator and Mrs. Fred S. Gillett, Harry H. Williams of the Governor's Council and Fred D. Rowe and Mrs. W. F. Cummings representing the Republican State committee.

Ushers were Robert Homans, George Richmond Fearing, F. S. Converse, Miffin Frothingham, Wm. Sam Parker, Hobart Ames, John Andrews and Ivan Hedin.

Relatives of the Frothingham estate were present in a special section of the church reserved for them. There was a profusion of floral tributes.

WEATHER HALTS HUB FISHERMEN IN PLANE

Portland, Me., Aug. 25 (AP)—Encountering bad weather as their amphibian plane passed above Sebago Lake bound for Lake Parlin from Boston, six sportsmen, believed to be the first ever to fly to fishing grounds were forced to return here last night.

The party includes Maj. Charles A. Malley, former captain of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company of Boston, who will be host at his camp. William S. Barthelomew and Pilot R. F. Billings, members of the Boston Aero Corporation. The names of the other three men were not revealed.

WALTHAM SOLDIER HERO IN HOB-NAIL SHOE FIRE

West Point, N. Y., Aug. 25 (AP)—Snarks from a soldier's hobnailed shoe were blamed for a $30,000 fire which today destroyed a garage and trucks at the military academy.

A soldier dared Beats to enter the blazing building and open spigots on a loaded gasoline tank truck, precipitating an explosion. First Sergeant John Smolen, Ramey, P., Private Joseph Schmitz, Gary, Ind., and Private Edward L. Connolly, Waltham, Mass., were praised by Maj.-Gen. W. R. Smith for bravery in rushing the burning building.

2 BIG LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN MERGER

Chicago, Aug. 25 (INS)—Hilliard Taylor, president of the Missouri State Life Insurance Company, announced today his organization had taken over the entire business of the International Life Insurance Company of St. Louis. The Missouri Life refinances and protects policyholders of the International. The International has more than $27,-000,000 insurance and the deal gives the Missouri Life more than $1,000,-000,000 insurance in force.

Peripatetic Snake a Third Story Worker

New York, Aug. 25 (AP)—A brown and white snake, 15 feet long and weighing about 75 pounds, was captured in a third-story apartment at 723 Eighth ave. early today by six policemen who forced it into a canvas bag after struggling for almost an hour.

Mrs. Mary Munno was awakened when the snake knocked several cans from a cupboard in the kitchen. She fled to the street screaming. The first officer to respond was defeated by the reptile and summoned an emergency squad. A yard-lick ... down the throat of the ... finally subdued it and pern ... its removal.

The police have been unable to learn where the snake came from or how it reached the third floor of the house.

BARELEGGED PUPIL SUES DANCE SCHOOL FOR $5000

Oklahoma City (AP)—Barred from a dancing school because she had worn no stockings, Miss Jonne Wallace is suing for $5,000.70. The cents are for the price of a ticket. Says the complaint:

"It is the custom and practice to abandon the wearing of hose and the same is not against the correct rules of society."

KILLS HIS DAUGHTER, WOUNDS HER HUSBAND

Bathe, N. Y., Aug. 25 (AP)—Mrs. Louise Dart McGowan, 22, was slain and her husband, Claude McGowan, seriously wounded early today by the young woman's father, William Dart, at Gilbert's Landing north of here. Dart surrendered. Dart said he fired at McGowan when the latter was struggling with his wife, the charge accidentally killing the wife.

Hunt Baptist Treasurer

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 25 (AP)—The home mission board of the Southern Baptist convention was announced today a nation-wide search had been asked for C. S. Carnes, treasurer, who has not been heard from since he left Atlanta, August 15. He left Raleigh, N. C., and Boston. The board fears an accident befell him.

Girl Escapes in Fall

Five-year-old Eileen McEnarney of 13 Bates st., West Roxbury, escaped serious injury today when she fell 15 feet from a window in her home. The child, who had pushed out a screen, was treated by a nearby physician.

FAIR, COOL SUNDAY PROMISED FOR HUB

A fair, cool Sunday forecast for Boston tomorrow should be followed by two or three days of similar weather next week, said the bureau's local forecaster today as he looked his weather maps.

Forecast for Boston: Cloudy tonight, possibly light showers; Sunday, fair, not much change in temperature; moderate south winds shifting to west and north.

GIRL CASHIER FOILS ROBBER

turned, jumped to the running-board of a sedan at the curb and was driven away. He had three confederates in the car, according to bystanders.

The attempted robbery was apparently carefully planned. The Saturday Friday afternoon and Saturday morning summer-time receipts of the Boston & Maine department of the offices were in an envelope ready for the bank when the robber quartet drove into Arch st.

The usual crowds were passing on nearby Franklin st. and a few persons were on Arch st. Inside the large window sat Miss Sheehan, acting as relief cashier for Miss Martina Corrigan. The paying stone was thrown so that it landed close to the envelope, where it would naturally frighten the cashier away.

"I think the man's sleeve must have caught on the token paper, giving me just time enough to recover myself and snatch up the money," said Miss Sheehan. "His hand was over the envelope, but it seemed to hang there. I passed the money out to Agent Thomas Maling, who was close by."

Another agent, Emil Fisher of Commonwealth ave., Allston, ran to the street and gave chase to the automobile on foot. The window smasher was still on the running-board, trying to get inside, as the car swung into Summer st., but as there was no traffic officer on duty at that moment, there was nobody to stop it. Fisher lost the trail in the maze of traffic.

A number believed to be the registration number was given the police by Charles Powell of Huntington ave. The best description that police obtained of the robber was that he wore a straw hat and light suit.

WIFE WILL ACCOMPANY ROBINSON IN CAMPAIGN

Indianapolis, Aug. 25 (AP)—Undaunted by the prospect of a strenuous campaign into more than 36 states, Mrs. Joe T. Robinson is making plans to accompany her husband in his fight for the vice-presidency. She said today she would be prepared to leave with the senator on his Southern tour after his formal notification Thursday.

Mrs. Robinson said campaigning would be nothing new to her, as she had accompanied her husband many times in his campaigns.

FROST WON'T JOIN IN "AUDITOR ELIMINATION"

Harvey E. Frost, one of six candidates for the Republican nomination for State auditor, today declined to accept the suggestion of Dwight L. Allison that all candidates abide by the decision of three judges who would eliminate five. "It is my intention to remain in the contest," Frost told Allison.

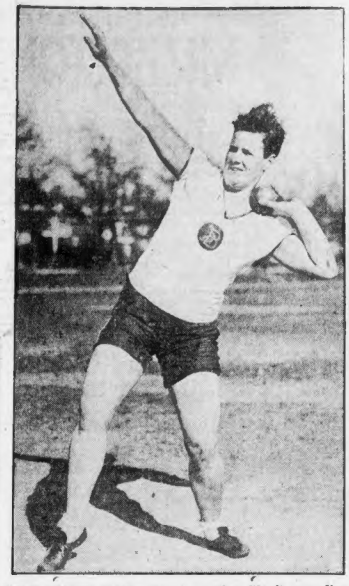
National Doubles at Longwood Monday



HOME, SWEET HOME. There's no place like it, according to Rena McDonald, who arrived in the Hub after a journey through Europe with the Olympic team. Miss McDonald of the Boston Swimming Association was a star in the women's Olympics and also in post-Olympic meets.

LIGHTNING HITS LONGWOOD on Monday when Henri Cochet, French tennis star, starts play in the national doubles. He will be teamed with his countryman, Jean Borotra. This pair have been playing together for some years and may cop the crown from the American entries. Cochet is too small to be a powerful player, but he is extremely clever. Two other French double teams have entered.

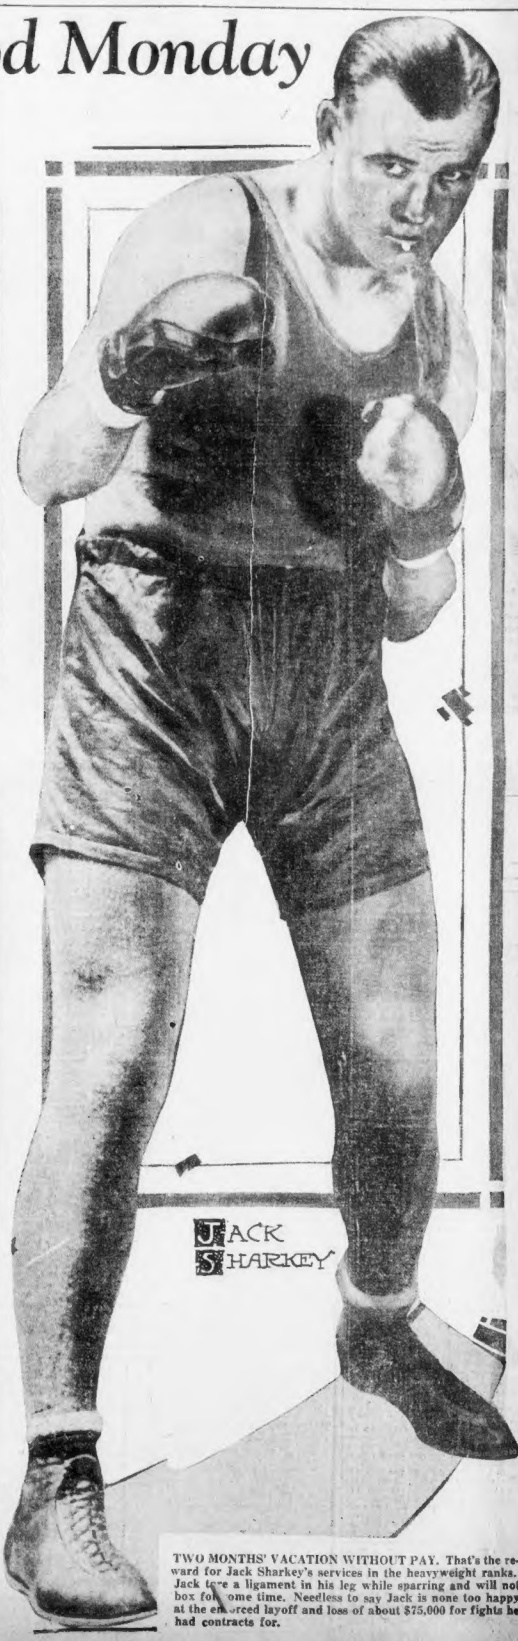
THIRTY-FOUR MINUTES separated Miss Hilda Sharp from the $5000 prize offered by a London daily to the girl who broke Miss Ederle's English Channel swimming mark. She was successful in her first try, landing in Dover after 15 hours and five minutes.

RACE TRACK LOSS, CHARITY GAIN. The Porter, one of the best of America's race horses and father of Toro, who finished second in the Kentucky Derby this year, is too old to go to the barrier any more and will be raffled off for charity on Labor Day at Cincinnati. The Porter, a real black beauty, will make a fine saddle horse.

MILLER HUGGINS WILL GIVE THREE RAYS for violet ray if it helps Herb Pennock's pitching arm which is crippled with neuritis at present and the Yankees getting a real battle for the American League pennant. Herb was hurling great ball for the Yanks and with him out Philadelphia's hopes of beating out the Huggins clan are made greater. The veteran is needed badly with the Mackmen bellowing on New York's heels only three games behind.



TWO MONTHS' VACATION WITHOUT PAY. That's the reward for Jack Sharkey's services in the heavyweight ranks. Jack tore a ligament in his leg while sparring and will not box for some time. Needless to say Jack is none too happy at the enforced layoff and loss of about $75,000 for fights he had contracts for.

Godfrey Replaces Jack Sharkey Against Charles

'MENACE' TO ALSO MEET ROBERTI

Sharkey-Peterson Bout Now Set for Early Date in October

By JACK CONWAY

GEORGE GODFREY, colored heavyweight sensation, is stepping in on some of Jack Sharkey's spoils. He has signed to take the place of the Boston contender against Pierre Charles in a 10-round bout at Navin Field, Detroit, on next Friday night.

Sharkey was obliged to call off his engagement with Charles along with his tussles with Big Boy Peterson and Roberti when he injured his left knee while training.

Floyd Fitzsimmons, Detroit promoter, at first tried to secure Jack Delaney as an opponent for Charles, but balked when the French man quietly asked for a $15,000 guarantee. Delaney probably felt as Sharkey was guaranteed $10,000 he rated at least 15 grand.

Jack Conway

Fugazy is also planning to use Godfrey against Roberti in New York in September. Sharkey's loss is Godfrey's gain.

Sharkey will not box until he fights Big Boy Peterson for the Arena Club. As Jack's injury is not as serious as at first feared, this match will probably go in at Fenway Park early in October.

WITH Tommy Loughran reluctant in giving up his title as world's light heavyweight champion, Tex Richard is planning to match Delaney with the title holder. Tex would like to drop this classic in at his New York Garden in October.

Delaney was not very successful battling heavyweights and has decided to confine his bet with the light heavyweights once more.

MATCHMAKER EDDIE MACK of the Argonne A. A. has completed his card for the Finnegan-Flowers show at Braves Field on next Tuesday night. The ten-round semi-final will bring together Benny Kid Carter of Chicago and Enrique Saverdo, a Filipino boxer.

Phil Bannana of Malden will draw Eddie Pinter of New York as an opponent in an eight-round tussle. San Filipo of New York and Johnny Harris of Denver will travel six sessions.

Four four-rounders also are carded. Joe Lowell, Lowell, and Al Cote, Gloucester, rival heavyweights, will meet in a return bout, while Joe Cooley of Dorchester and Frankie O'Leary of South Boston, Freddy O'Connor, South Boston, and Al Delano of East Boston will meet again, while Jack Palmisano of the North End and Al Sacco of Revere, two new-comers, meet in the opener.

COL. BOB McKIRDY of the Arena Club says that most of the fans who secured tickets for the postponed Sharkey-Peterson match are holding them for the Al Mello-Johnny Donovan New England welterweight championship battle, which will be staged at Fenway Park on next Thursday night.

Mello is training at Toland's gym, while Donovan is doing his stuff at Wrentham.

Laddie Lee of Somerville, one of the hardest-hitting middleweights in the country, will oppose Johnny Curico of Providence in the semi-final of eight rounds. Joe Tavelleri of Cambridge has been paired with Young Granberg of Worcester in a six-round mill.

Seven Cricket Games on Program for Today

There will be seven games on today's cricket program, the Massachusetts State league having cancelled four, and the Bay State league three.

In the Mass. League the Wanderers versus University, West India A. versus West India B and the Bermudians versus Yorkshires will be played at Franklin Field and the Standards and Yorkshires will oppose each other at North Brighton.

In the Bay State league, Everett will have the league leading United Shoe eleven from Beverly as their opponents at Glendale Park, Everett, and Brockton and Rockland will stage a South Shore battle in the Shoe City.

The Mystic Lodge eleven of Malden will have the Whittalls of Worcester as opponents in an exhibition contest at Linden which should draw big.

IT ALL DEPENDS ON YOU, DOC

Whether or not Jack Sharkey will ever be heavyweight champion remains to be seen after Dr. Fralick concludes treatments for a torn ligament in the Boston battler's knee. Jack will be back all right, possibly in a month, but the serious injury, received while sparring in preparation for the Peterson fight, may prevent him from wearing the crown discarded by Shakespeare's best promoter, Gene Tunney. Jack is shown above on the operating table with Dr. Fralick, a noted specialist, giving the injured knee the once over while a nurse stands ready to aid.

TILDEN CLAIMS U.S.L.T.A. CALLS HIM A 'LIAR'

September meeting of the executive committee of the association."

Tilden made this statement after reading the full resolution and accompanying statement of the executive committee of the association, made available to him by International News Service. A brief telegram from New York informed Tilden of his suspension and until he had seen the complete statement of the committee he refused to comment on the case.

WILL SEEK REINSTATEMENT

"That goes without saying," Tilden said as he admitted that he would seek reinstatement as an amateur.

But "Big Bill" was trying to take the verdict as a soldier would accept court-martial and would say nothing further until he had read the verdict carefully and prepared a deliberate statement.

His attitude was that he would seek reinstatement as a matter of course as a man might take an appeal from a court decision or conviction.

Tilden retired with the copy of resolution and comment to his room at the Copley Plaza Hotel, where he is staying during his appearance at a suburban theater. Half an hour later he made his statement and would not elaborate on it.

"I resent strongly the implication of bad faith which the United States Lawn Tennis Association requires to me in the verdict of the executive committee which you have brought to my attention," Tilden's statement said.

"They plainly refuse to accept any statement that I did not intentionally violate or evade the letter or the spirit of the rules. This body of gentlemen are interpreting my motives against my word to the contrary of their interpretation. In other words, they are calling me a liar.

PUBLIC MUST DECIDE.

"This I deeply resent. I am willing to stand against any such statement, for I know my intent and they do not. The public can choose which of us is right.

"I resent the attempt to prove that my influence is bad for the game and I resent the nasty implication of the statement 'the whole course o. Mr. Tilden's activities compel the adoption of drastic measures.'

'I am willing to stack my services to American tennis up against that of any individual officer on the committee which barred me and which has done which has been and is more value to the game.

"The amateur rule of the U. S. L. T. A. in its causes concerning player writers has only two limitations.

"1—It forbids the selling of one's name for publication on book, magazine or newspaper articles not actually written by the player. I have been and am in hearty accord with this rule. There has never been an attempt to charge me with any violation of this.

"2—By writing for pay current newspaper articles covering a tournament in which a player is a competitor. This is the rule which the U. S. L. T. A. claims I have violated through their interpretation that any allusion to a tournament while it is in progress constitutes a violation.

RULE MISINTERPRETED.

"This was not the intent of the committee in framing which called the rule, but since the association as interpreted it, there is nothing to do about that except to attempt to get the wording of the rule changed and clarified at the next annual meeting.

"The first or these two prohibitions carries professionalism as a mandatory punishment for its violation. The second, with which I am charged, carries no claim of professionalism, specifically so stated in the rule, but may mean suspension as the extreme punishment.

"This is my reward from the United States Lawn Tennis Association for nine years on the Davis Cup team.

"If out of this unfortunate and ridiculous episode which has made the United States look foolish in the eyes of the tennis world," concluded Tilden, "there comes a sane, sensible and clear rule of interpretation for the national tournament.

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

"I LEARNED from Johnny Buckley today that Jack Sharkey will be able to go through with his bout with Big Boy Peterson for the Arena Club the early part of October," said Mr. Boston as he whirled into the sporting department.

"I met Johnny up in front of his office on Washington st.,' went on the veteran. "He was looking a little bit gloomy as he thought of what his share of the three Sharkey postponed bouts would have been if the former gob had not met with an injury.

" 'It cannot keep raining forever,' I reminded the man who piloted Sharkey from a point where he was getting $150 a bout to the $211,000 shot with Dempsey.

" 'I was getting $18,000 for the Peterson bout,' sighed Buckley. 'The Pierre Charles match would have meant $20,000, while Fugazy was guaranteeing Jack $40,000 to battle Roberti.' To think that all that money must run for Sweeney for a while anyway.'

" 'How's Sharkey getting along?' I queried.

" 'Fine,' shot back Buckley as his face lighted up. 'The doctors now say he will be able to get back into harness in six weeks. At first it was believed he had a torn cartilage as well as a torn ligament, but it now develops that the trouble is restricted to the ligament. What a load this news took off my mind. You know if Sharkey's cartilage had been as badly injured as at first feared he would have been all through as a star boxer.

"'A TORN ligament is bad enough, but it should be as good as new in three or four weeks. Then with two weeks of training he will be ready to step in and box.'

"'What's there to the report that Sharkey pulled out of the Peterson match so that he could meet Jim Maloney at the opening show at the new North Station Arena?'

"'That's just plain bunk,' answered Buckley. 'Sharkey is under contract to box Peterson for the Arena Club and he intends to keep his agreement. Even if Sharkey wished to get away from this contract he could not do so. What do you think the Boxing Commission is for?'

"'Massachusetts has a working agreement with New York and so Jack must fulfil his agreement here before he can show in the Empire state. You can bet all the tea in China that when Sharkey next enters the ring it will be in Boston and that Peterson will be his opponent.

"'I HOPE Sharkey is ready to go early in October so that the bout can be staged at Fenway Park. In the event it is necessary to put the match indoors, I understand Col. Bob McKirdy will promote it in the Arena where he has a lease. I regret the Arena isn't larger than it is, but our contract calls for Sharkey to box for the Arena Club and that is the only organization we shall consider.

"'I HAVE talked over the long distance telephone with Dr. Wilfred Fralick who is treating Sharkey. He tells me Jack should be ready to box in six weeks. This was mighty pleasant news to me.

"'Dr. Fralick examined Sharkey immediately after his accident. At that time he feared a cartilage as well as a ligament had been torn. If such had been the case, Sharkey would probably have been obliged to have retired. A heavyweight contender with a trick knee does not go very far nowadays. A torn ligament is not such a serious thing and in the case of a young fellow like Sharkey responds to treatment quickly.'"

Boxer Who Collapsed in Ring Is Dead

Springfield, Aug. 25—Edwin O Wunsch, 24-year-old heavyweight boxer, who collapsed in the fifth and final round of a bout in the American Legion show at West Springfield Monday night, died today at the Wesson Memorial Hospital here.

Wunsch suffered from concussion of the brain, followed by hemorrhage and paralysis of his right side.

After his collapse in the ring it was revealed that he had been married for six weeks to Miss Hazel Bruce of Belchertown.

It is expected the State police, under whose supervision the bouts were held, will take action against John Dwyer, of Athol, Wunsch's opponent.

Wunsch received a terrific beating in the first four rounds of the bout, being floored a number of times by the fists of Dwyer. After 1 minute 45 seconds of the fifth round Referee Jack Sheahan of Boston stopped the bout and awarded it to Dwyer, as Wunsch was unable to go on.

The local heavyweight division collapsed, and a young woman who claimed to be his sister climbed into the ring to assist him. It was revealed that instead of being his sister she was Wunsch's bride, married to him secretly.

N. Y. Youth Wins Briton Amateur Title

Formby, Eng., Aug. 25 (AP)—Stewart Schettal, youthful New York golfer, won the boys amateur golf championship today, defeating Archie Dobbie, young Scotch player, in a final 36-hole match, 6 and 5.

GEORGE LOTT DEFEATS VAN RYN

Newport, R. I., Aug. 25 (INS)—George Lott of Chicago today won a leg on the huge casino challenge cup when he defeated John Van Ryn of Princeton and Orange, N. J., after one of the hardest battles of the week's tournament. The scores were 2—6, 8—0, 3—6, 6—2, 6—0.

The lanky Davis cup star from Chicago played a steady tennis match his collegiate opponent in the first set, but thereafter starred. His net game especially clicked him in defeating Van Ryn.

Van Ryn's streak of six straight games in the first set was followed by a love set on the part of Lott in the second.

The third set found each breaking the service of the other with splendid luck. Lott play finally winning the set for Van Ryn at 6—3. Lott found himself in the last two sets and after losing the second and third games of the fourth, won 11 games in succession to take the sets and the cup.

The point score was:

	FIRST SET.
Lott	1 0 2 0 5 0 6 0	—14
Van Ryn	1 4 4 4 4 4 6 2	—26
	SECOND SET.

London Girl to Try Channel Again

London, Aug. 25 (AP)—Hilda Sharp, youthful London swimmer who conquered the English Channel yesterday, has returned to Boulogne for another try at the choppy waters.

Miss Sharp made her swim in 15 hours 5 minutes, failing to beat the woman's record of 14 hours 31 minutes, established by Gertrude Ederle. Miss Sharp is confident that she will beat Miss Ederle's record on her second attempt, which will be made almost immediately.

The London girl, through her trainer, Jabez Wolff, issued a challenge to Miss Ederle for a race.

Joe Lynch Wins Woodland Tourney

Joe Lynch of Albemarle made Woodland's first nine holes look easy in the final round match of the open tournament in which he went to the turn in 32 to gain a lead of five holes on Perley Crosby of the home club.

Lynch holed all his putts so that it was a legitimate score but his chances for establishing a course record went glimmering through his play at the 10th, 13th and 14th holes and he was forced to be content with a 72.

Poor Hitting Cause of Yankee Slump

DEAR ROG—Sitting on the bench a few days ago one of the boys made a crack to the effect that our pitchers weren't holding up as they ought to.

Great Pirate Drive Worries N. L. Leaders

THE determined drive of the Pirates has come to be the latest feature of the wild National League race. The Corsairs are only five and a half games away from the front and have been playing consistently great baseball for a month. They knocked the Giants off yesterday, and thereby stretched the Card lead a full game, for the sensational recruit, Orsatti, hit his third homer in a week and won a game, 1 to 0, for the pacemakers.

Following are the game differences between the five fighting ball clubs:

	Won	Lost	Games Behind
St. Louis	72	48
New York	68	47	1½ games
Chicago	70	53	3½ games
Cincinnati	68	52	4 games
Pittsburgh	66	53	5½ games

Dan Howley's surprising Browns bombarded the Yanks twice, and thereby let the winning Athletics come up to within three games of the front. The Yanks seem to be in a sad way, while the Macks are flying.

A Prayer

Give me a good digestion, Lord, and also something to digest.

Give me a healthy body, Lord, with sense to keep it at its best.

Give me a healthy mind, good Lord, to keep the good and pure in sight.

Which seeing sin is not appalled, but finds a way to set it right.

Give me a mind that is not bored, that does not whimper, whine or sigh.

Don't let me worry over much about the fussy thing called I.

Give me a sense of humor, Lord, give me the grace to see a joke.

To get some happiness from life, and pass it on to other folk.

INFORMATION HOW TO STUDY PARISHES

Dr. H. Paul Douglass, who [illegible] surveys [illegible] hundreds of churches [illegible] this country, including 23 in Boston, has just [illegible] through the Institute of Social and Religious Research of New York a manual of simple, practical and procedure entitled "How to Study the City Church," [illegible] ministers, [illegible] in [illegible] search and [illegible] to conduct such [illegible] on their own account.

Dr. Douglass [illegible] and explains in detail, methods of study and steps in procedure developed and tested in various Institute surveys. [illegible] clear and precise instructions for making, without professional assistance, an allround study of a church, or an intensive investigation of some one or more aspects of a church's life and work, or a study of the religious antecedents and affiliations of a particular area to determine the church's responsibility [illegible]

For the benefit of denominational executives, federation secretaries and [illegible] instructions are also given for the making of more complex studies of groups of churches and their relations to the community [illegible] belong.

CHINA FAMINE RELIEF FUND GENEROUS

Quarter of Million Raised for China Famine

As a result of the appeal which has been made for the China famine [illegible] a quarter of a [illegible] representative has been sent to [illegible] generosity. This representative who is now on his way to China is Mr. John Earl Baker, an American resident of [illegible] who has had extensive experience in [illegible] famine [illegible] in China. Mr. Baker was also for several years adviser to the Chinese government in the development of its railways and is consequently thoroughly familiar with the country.

The present situation and the demand for continued interest and support [illegible] summarized in a resolution adopted by the administrative committee of the Federal Council of the Churches at its recent meeting. The [illegible] was as follows:

"The administrative committee of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America desires to express to the churches of the United States its appreciation of the generous response made to the appeal for famine sufferers in China by the committee on mercy and relief. The national committee on China famine relief with which the committee on mercy and relief has been cooperating reports total receipts of approximately one-quarter of a million dollars. It also states that notwithstanding the advent of summer and the [illegible] in of certain crops, [illegible] reports indicate that there are [illegible] means [illegible] and that [illegible] will continue throughout the summer in the [illegible] areas, so that these [illegible] funds will be most helpful and timely. The committee has sent one of its most experienced members to China to supervise the relief activities and to gather full and authentic information on which to decide in September whether or not the campaign will need to be continued during the coming Winter.

To Teach More Religion

Editorial by the Rev. E. M. Pierce, of the Center Methodist Church, Malden.

"This nation is being aroused to its need for more training in the fundamental virtues of life. The church is being awakened to its responsibility in meeting this need. We are beginning to learn that education which does not train the heart as well as the head and hand is incomplete and positively dangerous. We need no more educated criminals.

"To meet this situation more time must be given to education in the field of morality and religion. Better hours than those now employed must be given this most vital part of our training. The system that is meeting with the heartiest approval in this country and the one that is making greatest progress is the use of the non-credit hours of the public schools for purposes of moral and religious instruction. Arrangements are made whereby pupils, at the request of parents, are dismissed from the public schools during these non-credit hours to be instructed in the church schools. Many schools now make provision for such extra-curriculum activities as music and dancing. It is an extension of this privilege with this exceptionally high purpose in view: Of better moral and religious training, that this time is asked for. The church schools are entirely manned and paid for by the churches or community organizations. Due credit is sometimes given for the completion of work done in the church schools which are of an exceptionally high grade and operated under the supervision of highly trained teachers.

"It is a program that is big enough for all groups and creeds. We all want the same thing: Better individuals and a better society. We are glad to be able to transcend sectarian lines in this great program of education. We are discovering that it is more important to learn how to make a life than it is merely to make a living. The progress which we make as a nation in each generation will depend on the kind of ideas and ideals with which we store the minds and hearts of our youth in their education."

Boston Clergy's Boyhood

He Might Have Become a Leading Merchant, but Chose Church

He Has Known Famous Men And Women of the World All His Life

Two small boys were blacking boots in the basement of an estate in Brookline. Their hands were somewhat soiled by the process, and their small brows perspired with the exertion to bring exceptional [illegible] to the boots before them. They were to get five cents a pair.

In later years, when one of those boys was a great and successful merchant and manufacturer, and the other [illegible] of Massachusetts, they congratulated themselves that they had a father who knew the value and dignity of humble and necessary work.

Amos Lawrence, Sr., who owned an estate of 200 acres at Longwood, though a man of means, held staunchly to the belief that no child should grow up without knowing the meaning of toil and responsibility. His father, Amos Lawrence, had come to Boston years before with but a few dollars in his pocket, and had gone into business with thrift, shrewd judgment and [illegible] habits [illegible] sole assets. When the fortune came it was well invested, and carefully preserved.

Amos, the son, carried on the family tradition, and young William, son of Amos, 2d, was expected to keep up the high standards and increase the family fortune after he had received an education worthy of his position, as son of a leading citizen.

BROOKLINE CONNECTED BY MILL DAM

William Lawrence was born in a house on Pemberton sq. in 1850, where he lived but a few years when the family moved to the home in Longwood.

With vividness he remembers what the road to Brookline looked like in this early period before the Civil War. There was no Roxbury neck developed into a road, and the approach to the west was by way of the "mill dam" reaching from Arlington st. to the point where Beacon st. and Commonwealth ave. intersect. To the south was Back Bay, and on the other side was the Charles River. A toll gate required a fee from those who traveled that way. One recollection young William has of this thoroughfare is the fun he and his school chums had in throwing stones and smashing the street lights that stood between darkness and those who took the long, lonely drive or walk to Brookline.

With special pleasure does William remember the two ponies that he and his brother Amory owned, and possessed so long as they fed and cared for them. It was no easy task to get up of a winter morning and curry the coat of a soiled steed and brush him until his coat shone, especially when it had to be done in time for the boy to reach the Brookline grammar school by eight o'clock.

CONTACT—DEMOCRACY.

On the estate at Longwood were workmen, kept busy building, draining wells, pruning trees and developing the farm generally. William frequently watched these men at their work and through observance and actual work with tools he learned to be proficient with hammer, nails and saw. He could prune a tree and graft a seedling. It was through his acquaintance with these workmen about the Lawrence estate that the future bishop absorbed unconsciously the spirit of democracy and his sympathy for all kinds of common people.

From his father he caught the spirit of service as well as of work. In the early days before the war he remembers how his father became treasurer of the Emigrant Aid Society which financed parties who went out later to Kansas to make that territory a state, free from slavery. Amos Lawrence once ran for governor of Massachusetts on the Union Party ticket as opposed to the Republican ticket, and the boy William was tremendously thrilled when a torch light procession marched down the Lawrence lane and cheered his father, "The next Governor of Massachusetts." Amos Lawrence in reality received a very small vote.

Other vivid remembrances of the boy are of Charles Sumner, who stopped at the Lawrence home over night shortly after he had been struck down in the United States Senate by the hand of a southern senator, Preston Brooks. The Prince of Wales was another to honor the Lawrence home.

FAMOUS MEN AT NAHANT

Later, when the Lawrence family had a summer home at Nahant, William had the pleasure of living very close to Henry W. Longfellow, and next door to Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, and around the corner from Louis Agassiz. He remembers having a fine time smashing windows of a deserted stable and bowling alley with Cabot Lodge, Sturgis Bigelow, Frank Amory and others who had summer homes in Nahant.

When the Civil War broke out William Lawrence was 11 years old, and fully able to understand what the controversy was about. His father had always believed the slave question could be settled without bloodshed and criticized severely such men as John Brown, whom he thought a fanatic. When Fort Sumter was fired on, however, and it became a question of rebellion, the north, including Amos Lawrence, was a unit.

The boy William, though not old enough to enlist was quite capable of carrying a drum to beat time for various companies of recruits, some of whom Amos Lawrence drilled himself. Accounts of battles, returning wounded soldiers, the making of bandages all left a deep impression on the Lawrence boys and girls.

In May, 1867, the entire Lawrence family took a trip to Europe. There were seven children, two of whom had been married. William remembers seeing Napoleon III and his beautiful Empress Eugenie [illegible] by the hotel in which the Lawrence family was stopping in Paris.

In his account of his boyhood William says little about punishment or discipline, and one can read between the lines that in spite of a love to break windows, he was an exemplary lad with high ideals of what is right and wrong. He does tell, however, how once in a while he would grow angry at his brother Amory, and often follow his temper with a quick blow. In describing the scene Bishop Lawrence writes: "My brother was two years older than I, strong and fat. My temper was hot and quick, and I struck out in a second. He would then push me down, sit on me, pinion my arms under him while I wriggled and turned and fought. But there he sat quietly and for what seemed to me an eternity, getting up only after I had cooled off and promised humbly not to do it again."

A quotation from "Memories of a Happy Life" by Bishop Lawrence reveals much of the secret underlying the character and career of one of Massachusetts' leading churchmen. He writes:

THE MOTHER

"Our home life, unbroken for many years, full of health, prosperity, and comfort, was enough to spoil parents and seven children for active, strenuous, and useful lives. But we were brought up to feel that gratitude, not necessity or distress, was the strongest and finest motive of character and service, and every one of seven children, two sons and five daughters, all married later, tried through out life to do their part by hard work, home care, and public service.

"The wellspring of the home was, as it should be, in our mother; she was a woman of rare dignity of person, erect of body, of handsome face, clear-eyed, of exceptionally clear complexion to the end, and in her self-restraint a happy complement to my father's rather nervous emotional temperament."

The real inspiration to become a clergyman came to William Lawrence from Bishop Phillips Brooks, and Dr. Francis Peabody of Cambridge.

The boyhood of the Rev. John A. McCleland will be told next week. Fourth Presbyterian Church, Boston.

Bishop William Lawrence has written his own life and named it "The Story of a Happy Life." He is an example of a boy and man whom the possession of this world's goods did not spoil. His father believed in service and in hard persistent work, and he brought up his children to be worth something in the world.

Young Prince Edward of Wales had developed an intense and instinctive liking for the sea and the navy.

The Prince did not forget any rank of his ship's company when he left, and amongst other presents he made was a gold scarfpin set in diamonds given to Mr. Fogg, the captain's steward.

The Prince of Wales began at an early age to manifest not only the possession of a keen, discriminating mind, but a sound commonsense method of applying his wide store of knowledge.

There were two reasons why the Prince set to work with such extraordinary zest at this time. The first was, as an antidote to his disappointment at being denied a sailor's life, and the second a keen desire to prove worthy of the confidence placed in him by his absent parents. The Prince might have impaired his health by such strenuous study had it not been for Mr Hansell's wise thought in ensuring a modicum of relaxation from time to time for his youthful charge. During his study period at Sandringham time was found to visit frequently the Queen Mother, Alexandria, and to attend semi-public functions.

... would have been granted his heart's desire and have taken a long course of training and service in the navy. But his quick promotion to really important royal rank made many changes both in his future activities and in the moulding of his character.

In the midst of his studies at Sandringham the king expressed his desire that before any future was to be decided upon the prince should visit France and gain first hand experience of the world outside England. He was expected to polish his French language in which already he had shown great proficiency—and also study European history.

The fact that the prince was to travel incognito was in itself indicative of the nature of his stay in France.

'Good Girl'; Nancy Dreads Meeting Wescott

By ROY L. FOLEY

CHAPTER 36

As she passed ... between ... caught a glimpse of ...

... was probably utterly unconscious of it.

Yesterday his voice had been soft gentle, now it was no more gentle than a piece of steel.

For no particular reason she dreaded to meet his eyes this morning.

If only she could be alone, if only she could run from this office. She thought everyone must read the thoughts flying through her head. She didn't want to look at Lyon. She felt they must see the shame in her eyes for allowing her strength to crumble before Howard Wescott—any man.

She called herself a fool. She despised herself. She wished that she could despise Wescott. She tried to find within her some little spark of hate for him. There seemed to be none there. She tried to hate him and she could feel the hurt of his strong hands on her arms. She told herself he was despicable, "a big bum," and she could feel his lips on hers. In spite of a warning inner voice that kept calling: "He doesn't really love you—not as John ...

... friends are mighty interested in you," Harriet snapped. "John indeed! Is he another rich man's son who's suddenly becoming interested in Nancy, the beautiful cloak model?"

There was a sting in Harriet's voice that cut Nancy to the quick. A sharp answer was on the tip of her tongue, but she thought better of it, turned away and said nothing.

Harriet began to laugh nervously. "I didn't mean anything, really," she apologized, "guess I'm kind of jumpy this morning. I was only trying to be funny."

"Funny?" Nancy said. "Yes, sometimes you are funny."

Through the half open door they could hear Wescott talking on the telephone to John Blair.

"Sure, come right over," he was saying, "go to lunch with me. We can talk over old times. I've been wanting to see you ever since Miss O'Day brought me your letter. Yes, she's getting along famously."

EACH day those interested in the Boston American's crossword puzzles will have an opportunity to compete for 30 pairs of tickets for the Washington St. Olympia Theater, where "The Lights of New York," the first all-talking Vitaphone production, is running.

Each day five pairs of tickets will be awarded, to the five persons who correctly solve the crossword puzzle and write a 10 to 20-word letter telling briefly why they like the American's crossword puzzles. The awards will be made on the basis of correctness of the solution and the wording, ideas and neat appearance of the letter.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

"FANCY bathing suits for men,' now being coquettishly displayed at Deauville, have got the moralists all wrought up. They are highly excited over the danger threatening the morals of poor, weak women in the face of so much masculine sex appeal.

Ever since Eve, woman has been the empiress. But now it is MAN who is going to be the "pitfall" and "temptation?" Oo la, la!

Just HOW fancy or in what way "alluring" these masculine bathing suits are to be, the reports don't say. But it is safe to promise that no mere bathing suit will ever make a "temptation" out of the male form divine, unless it reaches all the way from the high sunburn-mark at his throat down past his toes and over his elbows.

If there is any time when a man has NO "it," that time is when he is wearing a bathing suit. No fluttering ruffle above a knotty masculine knee could never stir a woman's pulse! No low-cut "V" neck displaying a hairy masculine chest and peeling shoulders ever caused a woman's heart to skip a beat! No baby-blue striped bathing suit could make a square-cut elbow seductive and a pair of collar bones provocative!

He is most "tempting" when his tri-colored neck (red white and blue at the collar-mark) is hidden under starched white linen, and his brawny shoulders are softened by a nice, padded coat. He is most "demoralizing" in a belted shirt and perfectly fitting evening clothes! Or in white plus fours!

The greatest shock of a romantic girl's life is her first sight of her "Prince Charming" in all the brutal frankness of a bathing suit. If anything would discourage women from marrying it would be the vision of a lot of men on a bathing beach or the pictures in the garter advertisements.

And, believe it or not, the sight of a GIRL in her bathing suit has choked back the proposal of marriage fluttering in many a man's throat. Even the most beautiful of women is a hundred times more alluring in plenty of ruffles and frills than in the brazen bareness of a jersey bathing suit. It isn't what a man CAN see, but what he CAN'T see that piques his interest. The human form may be "divine"—but so are the hippopotamus-form and the kangaroo-form. Yet they have no sex-appeal!

As for most women, they are romanticists and sentimentalists. Without love, tenderness and romance, SEX has no appeal for the normal woman. It is a woman's heart and vanity, not her head or her senses, that are WEAK.

Let the moralists cheer up. If a man has any sex appeal for the average woman, it will be in SPITE of, not because of his bathing suit.

"What is your name?" whispered Sir Harry, his head on Elde's shoulder, notebook in hand. "Constance Talmadge," she replied, deciding upon the first name that came to mind.

Sir Harry looked at her thoughtfully a moment, then gaily kissed her. . . .

CUTTER'S IDEA IS ADOPTED BY CARRIERS

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor

U S. Department of Commerce points out that the keynote of successful modern railroad operation is having the right car in the right place at the right time. Carrying out this policy has enabled even those carriers doing less gross business to show a larger percentage of profits.

• • •

I find that the policy is one which was in augurated by President Victor M. Cutter of United Fruit Co., right here in Boston. In President Cutter's company, however, it is a question of having the right ship in the right place at the right time. I heard President Cutter explain at the Copley-Plaza just how this is done. The fruit company's radio in Boston is constantly in touch with all members of "the Great White Fleet" and with the fruit crops ripening at various points thousands of miles away at different times. The sparks keep the vessels "in the right place at the right time."

President Roland G. Hopkins of the Boston Ice Co., subsidiary of American Ice Co., tells me that since our recent tour of the plants in this city "we have broughgt two additional plants into operation; one on Dorchester av., near Glover's corner, and another one on the corner of Second and Hurley sts., East Cambridge. The Dorchester ave. plant makes 120 tons a day, and the East Cambridge plant about 200 tons a day. We have also completed three refrigerated boxes, one in East Boston, one in Forest Hills and one in West Roxbury, to wheih we haul manufactured ice from our plants and sell to pedlars in the district where the boxes are situated. We are having an excellent summer."

Todd Larkin, member of the Montreal Mining Exchange, tells me he always regards himself as a Bostonian and feels right at home whenever he returns to the Bay State. Mr. Larkin is among the millions who read and admire "Today." Says Mr. Larkin: "A few years ago when Frank Munsey, the multi-millionaire newspaper man, died, Arthur Brisbane wrote an editorial of six words that told the whole story in a nutshell. This is the epitaph: 'Forty years, 40 failures, 40 millions.' I have always regarded this as a classic."

Speeches Brought Pay

Shall We Put the Federal Government Into the Power Business?

OCKET No . . . COMMISSION'S RESPONDENTS EXHIBIT No 1971

IN THE MATTER OF

DATE .... WITNESS

By REPORTE

HON. CHARLES A. EATON

Congressman, State of New Jersey

An address delivered before the FIFTIETH CONVENTION of the NATIONAL ELECTRIC LIGHT ASSOCIATION held at ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. June, 1927

ABOVE is notice of an address against Muscle Shoals and Boulder Dam, which Representative Charles A. Eaton, of New Jersey, head of the industrial relations department, National Lamp Works, a subsidiary of the General Electric Company, delivered before the National Electric Light Association meeting in 1927. According to the proceedings before the Federal Trade Commission Eaton delivered the same address before the annual convention of the Rocky Mountain division of the National Electric Light Association at Colorado Springs, October 17-20, 1927. The official minutes state that "His address brought the delegates to their feet in applause." His expenses were paid by the utility people for coming out to deliver the address.

TODAY

Lindbergh was flying from California to Chicago with John J. Mitchell, Jr., as passenger. The Illinois Merchants' Trust Company and Continental National Bank and Trust Company plan a billion dollar merger. The flight was part of the deal.

It is pleasing to realize that Lindbergh piloting the ship interests Americans, even more than "a billion dollars."

Some things you can do, some things you can't. Kemal Pasha, boss of Turkey, tells Turks to wear real hats instead of a fez. They do it.

He offers his will in place of direct orders from Mohammed and Allah as expressed in Koran. The Turks stand that. Now he abolishes Turkish characters, replacing with our A B C's the picturesque Arabic scrip. The Turks stand that.

But even yet, they haven't given up alcoholic drink entirely, although Mohammed ordered it 1300 years ago. The rich drink what they please. The poor can't get it.

Let's hope it won't take us 1300 years to settle down, one way or the other, in this country.

John Coolidge, son of the President, evidently thinks his father's idea of vacat'on no vacation at all. It bores him to "eat, walk, read, sleep." Yet those are about the only things that anybody can do, after early youth, as young Coolidge will learn with more boredom later.

BIGGEST SUMMER FOR BUSINESS IS REPORTED

The biggest summer's business in its history despite the pesidential campaign is reported by the Monroe Calculating Machine Company, Inc., as of the end of July.

June sales were the largest the company has ever had since it was organized, while returns for July set a record exceeding any other July's business.

These records clearly indicate generally prosperous conditions throughout the United States, according to the Monroe Company, as its machines are being sold for use in all lines of business.

CONTINENTAL TO OCCUPY STORE
The Browning, King & Co. Store on Washington st., which is soon to be occupied by the Continental Men's Clothing Store, now occupying the site at Washington and Franklin sts.

CONTINENTAL IS TO TAKE OVER NEW STORE

The Freeland-Loomis Co., controlled by Wm. Filene's Sons Co., operating the Continental Men's Clothing store now occupying the site at the corner of Washington and Franklin sts., will take occupancy of the Browning, King & Co., store, at 407 Washington st., within a few days, following the closing out of the Browning- King & Co. store.

The Continental will continue to operate their other store, at the corner of Washington and Boylston sts., which will be extensively remodelled soon.

In addition to the move across the street, the Continental Clothing Co. will absorb the Murray-Brockley Men's Clothes Shop, now at 348 Washington st., as a part of the expansion program of the Continental.

Following the evacuation of the Browning, King & Co. store, the entire property will be renovated to meet the needs of the Continental, who will open for business in this new location very shortly.

The building at 407 Washington st. consists of four floors, including the basement, completely outfitted with modern men's clothes fixtures, well suited for the enlarged Continental.

The street floor will be devoted to men's furnishings and hats, the second floor to men's suits, the third floor to overcoats, and the fourth floor to Brockley clothes.

The property at 407 Washington st. to be occupied by the Continental, is owned by Harvard College.

ROADSIDE MURDER UNCOVERED BY DOG

Elkhorn, Wis., Aug. 25 (AP)—A dog's inquisitiveness which led him prowling into a culvert on the Williams Bay road, has added another "roadside murder" mystery to Wisconsin's crime list.

Wrapped in a blanket and jammed into the culvert was the body of a young woman, clad only in a cotton undergarment. Identification appeared impossible. County Physician Ridgeway said the woman had been murdered. Four ribs on the right side had been crushed, as though by an axe. "Roadside murders" have provided Wisconsin authorities with several of their most perplexing mysteries.

RADIO FOR PATIENTS AT MARLBORO HOSPITAL

Marlboro, Aug. 25 (AP)—Patients at Marlboro Hospital are today enjoying the privilege of listening in on the radio—a full equipment with earphones and a plug in each room and loud speakers for each ward and for the office. A radio and loud speaker also have been installed in the nurses' home. The entire equipment was presented by Michael Burke of Framingham rd.

SAY NUN HAD NO PART IN PLOT TO KILL 2

Mexico City, Aug. 25 (AP)—Charges that Mother Superior Concepcion Acebeda de la Llata participated in a plot to kill Presiden Calles are denied by Maria Elena Manzano, one of the alleged plotters.

During preliminary hearing in the court of first instance at San Angel Senorita Manzano testified the Mother Superior did not attend a meeting at which it is charged plans for removing Calles were discussed. She denied the nun had any connection with the plot.

Denial that a priest named Jaminez, sought by the police, attended any meetings of alleged plotters at the Mother Superior's home, was given by Eulogio Gonzales, one of the 12 defendants. He said he believed some other priest had been there, but not Jiminez.

Flier Falls 3400 Feet Before Opening His Parachute

Chicago, Aug. 25 (INS)—Jack Cope, veteran aviator, today boasted a new world's record in "parachuting" from an airplane.

Cope stepped into space from an airplane cabin door 10,000 feet over Ashburne flying field here. He dropped 3,400 feet before opening his parachute.

His plummet-like drop lasted 13½ seconds, and covered a vertical distance equivalent to five Woolworth towers one on top of the other. He landed safely amid a foursome of golfers.

The previous "sheer drop" record was held by Sergt. Boes, army aeronaut, who claimed to have fallen 2,200 feet before opening his parachute.

SPELLACY SORRY HADLEY WON'T RUN FOR SENATOR

Hartford, Ct., Aug. 25 (AP)—Commenting on reports that President Emeritus Arthur T. Hadley of Yale University, an independent Republican, will be a candidate for United States senator on the Democratic ticket, National Committeeman Thomas J. Spellacy declared today that the famous educator is "not in a receptive mood for the nomination, and according to my information will not be either an active or passive candidate." Spellacy said he wished "it were otherwise, as Dr. Hadley would fulfill all requirements." Dr. Hadley is a brother-in-law of Charles G. Morris, twice Democratic candidate for Governor.

KNOCK DOWN BACK BAY MAN AND ROB HIM OF $56

Three men robbed Raymond Haviland, 39, Queensbury st., Back Bay, of $56 early today after knocking him down in Essex st. One struck him in the mouth, lacerating his lip, and he was taken to Haymarket Relief Hospital for treatment.

DRYS AGAIN 'TAP HIPS' ON LINER

New York, Aug. 25 (INS)—For the second time within a week federal customs agents staged a spectacular "hip-tapping" raid on the French line pier today.

Friends who had just bid goodby to passengers on the Ile de France were stopped at the exit of the pier as they departed for their homes.

Seven agents, four of them negroes, slapped the hip pockets of the men and searched the handbags of the women. The agents made a similar drive when the liner Paris sailed a week ago. At that time they obtained 14 bottles of liquor, it was said, but today they found no intoxicants.

AMESBURY FLIER COMES TO AIRPORT STATION

Lieut. Thomas A. Wilson, a native of Amesbury, was assigned today by the War Department to succeed Lieut. Richard A. Cobb at the Boston Airport, the latter having recently been transferred to the first pursuit group at Selfridge Field, Mich.

Enlisting in the army flying service at Mineola in August, 1917, Lieut. Wilson later attended the Princeton School of Military Aeronautics, and then went to Kelly Field, where he was commissioned March 14, 1918. He was flying instructor at Love Field, Dallas, and at San Antonio fields during the war.

5000 at Gardner Fair

Gardner, Aug. 25—The eighth annual midstate fair of the Gardner Agricultural Association brought an attendance of 5000 on the opening day. Light harness horse races was the feature of the entertainment and other races will be run today.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

10 Cents Per Shirt

How the State of Rhode Island Competes With Working Women

Rhode Island newspapers report in boastful spirit that 231 inmates of the State Prison at Cranston made more shirts in July for New York contractors than were made by 269 inmates in the same month of 1927.

The output was 7734 dozens, or 92,808 shirts, for which the State received $10,111.14, or a fraction better than 10 cents a shirt.

If this is not penalizing the shirtmakers who employ free labor we wish someone would tell us what else it is.

Granting that convicts should work at SOME form of useful labor during their imprisonment, we believe the garment industry to be most unsuited to prisons and most injurious to free labor and private manufacturers.

Upon a rollcall in the House of Representatives at Washington, last May, only 29 votes were cast against a bill giving to each State the right to regulate the sale of convict-made goods wherever produced.

All the votes of Maine, and the 13 Massachusetts members who voted, were recorded IN FAVOR of the bill.

Representatives Burdick and Aldrich of Rhode Island, perhaps because it has become the settled policy of their State to compete with the independent shirtmaker and his free workmen, voted "No."

An industrial commonwealth like Rhode Island should be in better business than permitting the use of its prison labor in unfair competition with working women.

A Sword for the Emperor

It Really Will Be "Finest Steel"

THE EMPEROR'S SWORD

Here you see Kyusuke Mori, famous sword-maker of Japan, hammering out and tempering steel for the ceremonial swords to be used in the coronation of the new Emperor. He has been Emperor for some time, but Japan in these great matters proceeds slowly in dignified fashion.

Kyusuke Mori, like many others following important trades in Japan, inherits his knowledge of steel-making from ancestors going back through centuries.

Hammering and hammering hour after hour, the sword will be tempered, and the impurities will be hammered out of the steel, until perfectly pure metal is produced.

What interests United States steel men is the fact that such steel is actually better than any steel made in a wholesale way, with the Bessemer furnace or otherwise.

There are gates in England hammered out in this fashion that do not rust, even after centuries of exposure.

And this Japanese sword left out of doors beside a piece of ordinary "high grade" steel would keep its edge while the other steel would go.

It is the constant prolonged hammering that gets rid of all the impurities and reduces the blade to "pure" steel.

However, there is ahead of us the greatest steel development of all, namely, steel made by the electric process. The United States Steel Company and others are working at it, although they seem to be a little slow in getting started.

This process will save fuel, produce pure steel without all the slow hammering, by a process so simple that a child might have invented it. And, MOST IMPORTANT, it will make available for use gigantic deposits of iron practically worthless because of the amount of sulphur or other impurities that the iron contains.

Iron deposits in Japan are of little value for treatment by modern methods, although a patient Japanese can hammer pure steel out of them.

The electric process of steel manufacture will probably make Japan independent of our steel manufacturers.

Important to the United States is the fact that this process will bring into use enormous beds of metallic sand along the Pacific Coast, more than enough to meet inexhaustible, between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

California, from having no steel manufacturers to speak of, may have a gigantic steel industry and be made independent of the rest of the world as regards steel.

Little coal is required for production by the new process Electricity, after the ore is pulverized, evaporates the absolutely pure iron, picking it up on magnetic plates.

The fact that the iron need not be smelted to its ores here is also a great advantage.

There is much meaning in this [illegible] with the Japanese hammering out the Emperor's [illegible]

Here in America we won't have a [illegible] but the electric power of the lightning will pick it up in microscopic specks, taking up the iron only, leaving the rest.

Some That Byrd Might Take Along

By FRANKLIN COLLIER

JANE ADDAMS FOR NOBEL PRIZE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE Women's International League for Peace and Freedom is proposing its international president, Jane Addams, as a candidate for the Nobel Peace Prize.

A glance at the names of the persons who have received this prize shows that it has been given to only one woman, Baroness Bertha von Suttner, of Austria, in 1905.

Since the enfranchisement of women in many countries they have shown a remarkable influence upon public life and thought and this influence should be more fully recognized.

There are two means of preventing war, and the prevention of war is by far the most important question in the world today. Another war like the last one would be too horrible in its effects to contemplate.

One of the ways is by politics. The League of Nations was one political plan and Mr. Kellogg's efforts constitute another. Sincere wishers for peace are in favor of trying any of these plans if they will work. Whether Mr. Wilson's plan or Mr. Kellogg's is adopted we do not care, so long as something is done.

But there is something necessary to this end besides political action and diplomatic arrangements.

That thing is public opinion. It is as necessary for the majority of people on earth who desire to avoid war to make public opinion effective, as it is to have the machinery for doing away with war.

Hardly any name can be mentioned among the workers for peace that is more conspicuous than that of Jane Addams, founder of Hull House and holder of degrees from many universities and colleges, vice-president for many years of the American Peace Society, writer and lecturer upon peace topics in many countries. She is pre-eminently qualified to receive this prize.

She has been called "America's first citizen." She has not hesitated to risk her unique popularity by adhering immovably to her peace principles.

She would do credit to the United States, and we can think of no considerable people who would not be pleased to see her receive this honor.

Not because she is a woman especially, but because of the constructive work she has done, it would be a fitting crown to her life's work and an encouragement to all who earnestly work for peace to have her receive this prize.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I LIKE to Start Something in this column. Something that will cause the family to think quick and talk noisy far, far into the night. That sort of commotion is good for out, families and newspapers—usually. I can promote my rumpuses without outside aid. But now and then a document crashes into this department which makes my best efforts look like a mere whisper. Such is the following.

I tried it first on my own domestic outfit. We ended in (a) gassy bed, after dem-stinking all the best china, busting the bridge lamp, biting faces, tatters pillows to shreds and wallowing in the goldfish bowl. Which I call a good test for any newspaper article. I accordingly pass it on to you—hoping for the worst.

DEAR ELSIE ROBINSON—

I have noticed discussions in your column about the comparative efficiency of single or married women workers. It seems to me that it is one of the biggest subjects before the public today and I'd like to have my say about it. I'm all for the married worker and hate her reasons.

THE MARRIED GIRL—She is a parasite as a worker to the single girl because she is working for a purpose. In almost every case she is helping to pay for her own home or contributing to the support of a mother, brother or sister. She is more attentive to her work because she has so much at stake that she cannot afford to be fired. She does not primp for the office shirks because she has a man to peep own whom she is eligible to rush home to, to feed and manner.

After finishing her work at home, the married woman works content to get to bed so she can be fresh and lively in the morning.

Not once do you hear a peep out of her though she may be terribly tired. She is happy working toward her ideal and when her dream comes true she is willing to step out of the office into her home to make room for someone who needs the job more than she does.

THE SINGLE GIRL—Almost always the single girl gets to the office many minutes late, takes more minutes to put her first layer of war paint over her unwashed face, smears on the Cupid's Bow, then saunters out into the main office to make a killing. If she is a steno she will sit and yawn between the letters, uttering occasional "what was that" or "I beg your pardon." Sits half awake all day wondering what will be the best date, whether Jack will call, where Jim is—etc. etc. Writes a little note to every Tom, Dick and Harry. Phones and tries to make a date for lunch. Sees a new guy in the office and quits everything in her effort to lend him. When 5 o'clock comes she still has a number of letters unfinished, but does she bother to do them? She does NOT, for she has a date with Phil that evening and must rush home, grab a bite, leap into her best clothes and dash out again on a mad carousal until 3 a. m. And so on, week after week.

And this is why more and more married women are being given jobs in preference to single girls.

MABEL.

Which is what I call inflammatory literature. Have you my permission to respond? You have. With this exception. Sledge hammers, paving blocks, underdone eggs and overdone cats are all barred as modes of repartee. If you can't do enough damage with the rich American language, commit your murders elsewhere.

New York Day by Day

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—The pick of artist models now make $10 a day although the average is around $7 a day. For many years they were paid 50 cents an hour. The job has proved an entering wedge for the stage and screen—and successful marriage.

Who, artists such as Harrison Fisher and Neysa McMein select a model whose beauty is spread on covers and later on the magazine covers she is more than likely to grace. Beauty show producers and cinema magnates watch for new models to glorify.

Nearly all the famous show girls who strutted across stage in magnificent costumes during the past decade began as models. The manikins employed in the dressmaking salons are paid from $35 to $75 a week. Facial beauty is not so important. The figure and walk count. The majority of models come from American villages. Despite extravagant stories of high-jinks in the studios, the bulk of the girls are not bent upon a stage or screen career or capturing an aging Wall Street broker with a palace on the Hudson and a solesaed liver.

They pose as models to pay their way through school or to pursue knowledge for a profession. Most of them live at art clubs or semi-philanthropic institutions where all lights are out at 11 o'clock and the front door locked and barred shortly thereafter.

Greenwich Village, of course, has its quota of high flying models who give the casting merely as a respectable veneer to hide the fast pace. They are really "call girls" who respond to summons from dubious gentlemen to aid in entertaining visiting buyers.

Such artists often give the business a false status. There are several reputable agencies which supply models of every type for a small fee. While several models have married famous artists, the attitude toward them is generally as impersonal as it is toward paints and brushes.

BROADWAY'S oldest flapper is a devoted customer of the night clubs. She is the widow of a retired army officer, wears the latest Parisian frocks, dances gracefully, smokes cigarettes—and—shades of Fanny Ward—has a baby lisp. Doubtless, a grand idea!

THEN there is another devoted night clubber, a chic looking lady who seems no more than 18. A longnette she uses seems quite out of place. She is squired about by a meek looking collegiate who is her grandson. Indeed, there are many Fanny Wards in this and other cities. They have merely not been publicized.

ONE of the youngest looking Scouts on Broadway is 49. He has a mass of wavy blond hair, pink cheeks and a thin slight figure. He is a former jockey and mingles only with young bloods. There are some men who outwardly show no effects of dissipation and he is about the most conspicuous of the brood.

TODAY at lunch two men engaged in an altercation. One tried to precipitate fisticuffs by his violence. It is generally true that the man who gets maddest in a quarrel is in the wrong.

THERE is nobody as dangerous as a [illegible] who has control over [illegible] parting with his temper. When he becomes angry he explodes. I was with one once on a curb watching a parade. A policeman singled him out for meticulously nasty abuse. The gentleman tried in every way to placate the officer and amiably obeyed his every whim. Finally the abuse grew too scorching for him and in a twinkling the officer was knocked as flat as a flitter and it took three fellow officers to tear my friend's fingers from their buddy's throat.

"IN your home village," writes one signing himself Roamer, "they had to run you down on your 21st birthday to put shoes on you, and here you show up on Broadway wearing spats. How do you get that way?"

It seems to me Mussolini is doing good work in Italy.

Britain's Experiment

A Warning to Us

Britain, wanting the truth, and not content to pat itself on the back as some of our Government departments do, arranged for a theoretical attack by air on London. Two hundred airplanes equipped with imitation gas and highly explosive bombs attacked the city, while sound detectors, searchlights, high power machine guns and anti-aircraft guns were employed in the imaginary defense. A careful record was kept of results, and the report of the British government amazes you.

In this country it would have been very simple. An attack would have been made and then we should have been told that airplanes are really NOT important, the defense having been entirely successful.

The British announce that if such an attack had been made in earnest, it would have left London in ruins.

Not only Whitehall, the center of government, but the Air Ministry, itself, "soul of the air defense," were destroyed, theoretically.

And that was the result of only one day's attack. Four other attacks will be made.

The world is at the mercy of air attack. Any competent nation in Europe could attack and destroy the principal cities of any other nation within twenty-four hours. They know it, and ought to be polite to each other.
